THIRD TIME LUCKY AS BURTON PILOTS DOGS HOME

AJ LUCANTONIO

Matt Burton's third attempt at field goal was the one that mattered most in the first period of Golden Point, as the Bulldogs scored a critical victory over the Cronulla Sharks, who have now dropped four of their last five matches.

Cronulla started poorly, failing to get through their first set and were left defending their own try line for the best part of the opening five minutes. Despite a sloppy pass from Reed Mahoney out of dummy half. Canterbury capitalised on all the early field position from the visitors' mistakes as Viliame Kikau recovered the pass and grubber kicked ahead. Two Sharks players bumped into each-other and allowed Kikau to score the opening try of the evening.

Cronulla kept making errors and conceding penalties leading Canterbury on another excursion in their red-zone. Ten minutes after Kikau's effort, they were under their own sticks again. Reed Mahoney fooled the defence, as they slid on Kikau, Mahoney dummied and snuck over for the Dogs' second try. Matt Burton added the extras for a 12-0 lead.

Canterbury soon joined the party of poor discipline which cruelled them last weekend, conceding two quick penalties allowing the Sharks down the field. After making a mistake in the opening set, Cam McInnes made amends with a lovely short pass to Briton Nikora who crashed across to continue his recent purple patch of good form. Nicho Hynes converted to cut the Bulldogs lead in half.

Cronulla's attacking execution from that point on left a lot to be desired. Kayal Iro and Jesse Ramien seemed to be catching a cold when the ball was in the Sharks attacking red-zone as each attacking possession was seemingly passing them by. Canterbury were answering every Cronulla question, holding the Sharks to the lone Nikora try at the break. Things were getting heated at the break as the game's serial pest Mahoney tried to ruffle up Hynes leading to a stern warning from referee Gerard Sutton at the break.

It was a frantic start to the second half, as both sides broke the defensive line. However in the greasy conditions, the movements were coming up just short with errors and forward passes crueling point-scoring chances on both sides. After the miscues. The Sharks went scheming down the blind-slide, finally utilising Ramien who got it out to Sione Katoa who sprinted down the sideline. Katoa was able to be the dragging cover defence to go over for the first try of the second stanza.

After a lull where the Bulldogs dominated possession but once again came up empty. Cronulla were starting to become more expansive and were breaking through the Dogs middle. Following a Hynes half-break, Braydon Trindall went to the air. Mulitalo took the ball un-contested and was somehow able to get boot to ball. Trindall was there to pick it up and cross to give the Sharks the lead for the first time in the contest.

Accor Stadium, Sydney Olympic Park / Wanngal

Cronulla's poor discipline was giving the Dogs chance after chance in the red-zone but it appeared the winning moment wasn't going to come. A late Bailey Hayward grubber kick saw Toby Rudolf give away his third penalty of the evening. This allowed Burton to take a gift two points and level the scores at 14-14. Burton tried two, two-point field goals but missed by agonising margins sending the game to Golden Point.

Both sides had their chances in Golden Point. Cronulla had their first chance after a Sam Hughes error in the Dogs' first set. Hynes' miss from directly in front gave the Dogs a fresh set. Some offloads gave the home side field position, and Burton made sure it was third time lucky when he slotted it off the upright to give the Bulldogs the win to stay in pace for a top 4 spot.

WARRIORS WRESTLE PAST BUCKING BRONCOS

JUSTIN DAVIES

New Zealand Warriors picked up a vital win in their 32-16 result against Brisbane Broncos at a heaving Mt Smart Stadium on Saturday afternoon.

The Warriors bounced back well and get a win that helps to revive their stuttering form after the thrashing against the Titans. Chanel Harris-Tavita picked up a brace while halves partner Te Maire Martin controlled the play well all afternoon.

Warriors wanted a fast start after last weekend and got what they needed. They built the pressure with their kicking game then Chanel Harris-Tavita sliced through to make it 6-0.

They kept their foot on the gas in front of another huge crowd. Adam Pompey was cut down by a brilliant tackle but Te Maire Martin scooped it up, threw a dummy and slammed it down.

The hosts added their third score of the half from another kick. It was punched through low, deflected off a Bronco and Harris-Tavita won the race to touch down and make it 16-0.

Broncos did pull one back late in the half through Deine Mariner. The kick was put up high and it was dropped by the Warriors and Deine Mariner was there to get the four-pointer.

The visitors looked much more themselves in the second half. Ezra Mam led from the front with a 40/20 and they went within inches of scoring from a fantastic Selwyn Cobbo run which was judged a knock on.

Brisbane did bring it back to 16-10 after a late six again call. They spread the ball to the right, Tristan Sailor with a well timed pass which allowed Mariner to pick up his second try.

Warriors absorbed the Broncos best punch in the second half and struck themselves. Te Maire Martin stabbed through a kick which Roger Tuivasa-Sheck swanned onto and made it 22-10.

The Broncos wouldn't go quietly into the night in this important game. Xavier Willison just said give me the ball, the big prop just kept pumping his legs until he scored the four-pointer.

The Warriors just kept them at arms length though in the final stanza. Te Maire Martin unfurled another high kick which Dallin Watene-Zelezniak plucked out of the air with ease to touch down.

Freddy Lussick put the icing on the victory for the Warriors. It was a wraparound play started by Mitch Barnett who found the interchange man to go over untouched for 30-16.

EELS STAY BOTTOM OF THE LADDER AS KNIGHTS TAKE IMPORTANT HOME WIN

JOSH ROBERTSON

The Newcastle Knights have kept the Parramatta Eels at the bottom of the NRL ladder with a 34-26 win in a game filled with bunker interventions and missed opportunities in front of over 27,000 fans.

Despite having mountains of possession early on, the Knights had to stand and watch the Eels open the scoring through Blaize Talagi as a repeat set for the Blue and Gold paid off and they were able to spread the ball right and score. Mitch Moses converted for a 6-0 lead.

Maika Sivo was the first to be denied by Wyatt Raymond in the bunker when he was ruled to have been brought down short off the line by referee Peter Gough and with no evidence to overturn the bunker upheld the live call. The Knights though were able to hit the scoreboard with debutant Will Pryce who charged through off a Daniel Saifiti offload.

The Eels hit back soon after as Mitch Moses went left from the scrum and showed that he has speed as he left the Knights defence clutching at the air to score wide out. The conversion was successful and the Eels had a 12-6 lead.

The bunker denied Maika Sivo a second try as he tried to claim a try that looked nothing close to being one before the Knights went up the other end as the hosts spread the ball and Greg Marzheew went over for his first of the night. Jackson Hastings missed the conversion and the score went to 12-10 which is stayed at for the Half time break.

Not long after half time, the Knights went over again as the Blue and Gold defence were caught napping as Marzheew went through out wide for his second. The Knights winger thought he had his third try of the night minutes later but not for the first time Wyatt Raymond had to intervene and overturn the try after the Knights kick chasers were offside and became involved when Talagi lost the ball.

Just a few minutes later, the home side again were given the four points by referee Peter Gough when Bradman Best got his way to the line BUT yet again Wyatt Raymond had to overturn the live decision when Bradman Best was never close to getting the ball down.

The two denials for the Knights were to hurt even more as the Eels went bang bang in quick succession when Blaize Talagi picked up his second of the game when the Knights couldn't clean up a kick and then Mitch Moses again stood up to score. Both conversions were pushed away.

The Novocastrians put themselves back in front when Enari Tuala was in the right spot to pounce on a loose ball after Dane Gagai's kick was fumbled by the Eels and Tuala was on the spot to score. Jackson Hastings conversion put the Knights up 22-20.

Tuala thought he had a second a few minutes later when the Knights kept the ball alive off a last tackle kick but yet again despite it being awarded live, the try had to be disallowed by Wyatt Raymond in the bunker with Fletcher Sharpe only keeping possession by pinning it against the leg of a teammate standing in front of him.

McDonald Jones Stadium, New Lambton / Awabakal

The Knights did score next which came when the Eels turned the ball over and Bradman Best had to race 80m away to score untouched. The conversion from close range was good for Jackson Hastings and the Knights restored an 8 point lead.

Things weren't over as the Eels had an unlikely last tackle combinations which saw Junior Paulo combine with Bryce Cartwright and back again as Paulo burst over to score close to the posts. The Eels closed the gap to two when Mitch Moses converted.

The Knights sealed things in the dying minutes when Bradman Best again swooped on an Eels error came after spreading the ball right and Best though struggling got to the line to score two tries late to seal the 34-26 win.

STORM WIN UGLY AGAINST SLOPPY RAIDERS

ANDREW FERGUSON

Cold and greasy conditions greeted both sides at AAMI Park on Saturday night, where it was the Storm who adapted vastly better, winning 16-6.

The first half saw Melbourne dominate field position and were also more disciplined, however it took 37 minutes before the first points were scored, when Bronson Garlick fired a stellar flat ball to his lead runner Josh King, who juggled the ball that he wasn't expecting to receive, then noticed there was no one near him, so he fell over the line to score untouched near the posts. Tyran Wishart converted.

The Storm almost had 2 other tries in the first half, with the bunker denying both. In the 12th minute Grant Anderson put in a chip and chase and dived to plant the ball for a try but he didn't get a hand on it.

In the 25th minute Sualauvi Faalogo dived to score in the comment but lost the ball mid-air due to a great cover tackle from Albert Hopoate.

At halftime, Melbourne held a tight 6-0 lead.

Kaeo Weekes, who had a horror first half, made up for it inside the opening 90 seconds of the second half, when he fielded a Storm kick near his own line, busted through two defenders, then used his speed and step to race 95 metres to score a scintillating try. Jordan Rapana converted to level the scores.

Melbourne hit back just 4 minutes later when Garlick at dummy half and close to the Raiders line, dummied left and then passed right to Shawn Blore who crashed over to score. Wishart added the extras.

Melbourne ran a similar play on the other side 4 minutes later when Jack Howarth on a ruck run, steam rolled over the defender to score a strong try. Wishart failed to convert.

A Jordan Rapana fumble in his own in-goal very nearly produced a try for William Warbrick, but the Bunker found a Storm knock-on in the lead-up.

Melbourne received a penalty deep in the Raiders half in the 64th minute and Tyran Wishart had a shot at the penalty goal, but missed from the relatively easy angle.

In the 72nd minute, a Wishart grubber into the Raiders in-goal very nearly produced a try for Xavier Coates, but it was also denied by the Bunker. Coates came out of the play with an injured leg and limped off the field.

A number of players, mostly Raiders, copped head knocks and head cuts from a rather well behaved contest. Eventually the Storm held on to win 16-6.

NRL ROUND 17 WRAP

SAINTS SOAR WITH SECOND HALF SURGE

ROBERT CROSBY

The St George Illawarra Dragons posted five unanswered tries to turn a halftime deficit into a 26-6 victory over the Dolphins on Sunday afternoon.

In a match where points were at a premium for the first 40 minutes, the Dragons grew in confidence with and without the ball after halftime to move back into the top eight for the first time since the opening round.

With neither side able to make a dent on the scoreboard during the opening quarter, the Dragons looked to break the deadlock midway through proceedings only for Mathew Feagai to put a foot on the sideline after strong defensive pressure by Trai Fuller and Herbie Farnworth.

With the scores still locked at 0-all heading into the final moments of the first half, the Dragons elected to add a penalty through Kyle Flanagan after knocking back the chance to do so earlier in the half.

The Dolphins capitalised on an error with seconds remaining in the half with Tesi Niu (39th minute) finishing off a right-side shift to send the visitors to the sheds leading 6-2 after Jamayne Isaako's successful conversion.

A try to Raymond Faitala-Mariner (46th minute) following the resumption of play levelled the scores at 6-all, while at the other end of the field the Dolphins were left to rue a missed opportunity when Connolly Lemuelu failed to adequately ground the ball over the try line.

The Dragons pushed further ahead with Christian Tuipulotu (53rd minute) scoring his first try in the Red V off a scrum and Tyrell Sloan (58th minute) supporting an offload to give the hosts a 16-6 buffer heading into the final quarter.

Proving just as effective without the ball by withstanding goal-line pressure following a well-executed 40/20 by Isaiya Katoa, a barge over effort by Jack de Belin (65th minute) sealed the result before Jacob Liddle (68th minute) swooped on a loose ball to the delight of 8,052 supporters braving the cold at Kogarah.

COWBOYS SOAK IN THE RAIN AND WIN OVER PANTHERS

RHYS SULLIVAN

The Cowboys have claimed a 16-6 win over the Panthers at a soaked BlueBet Stadium in a match decimated by a lack of Origin stars.

The Panthers started with a poor mistake as they kicked the ball out on the full, but didn't go punished as a Kyle Feldt try was rubbed out due to an obstruction. But it wouldn't be long before North Queensland did get the first points, as Scott Drinkwater fired a lovely looping cut out to put Feldt over in the corner.

Drinkwater was soon sent to the bin for a professional foul, but almost immediately Feldt took an intercept and put the Cowboys back in attacking position. That same set the Panthers were stripped for numbers despite having the man advantage and Braidon Burns made it 12-0.

But possession would slowly swing to the Panthers, and after Sunia Turuva was denied a try by some great scramble defence Penrith set up shop inside the Cowboys 10. They received 5 penalties in as many sets, which included Jaxon Purdue being sin binned for a trip, and eventually North Queensland cracked with Brad Schneider getting a try to bring the game back to 12-6. Chad Townsend missed a field goal in the dying stages and the score remained at the break.

The second half turned into a slog fest, with both sides coming to grips with increasingly wet conditions. Eventually the bounce of the ball went the way of the Cowboys, with a deflected grubber being taken 70 metres by Drinkwater before Purdue crossed on the next play to take the lead to 16-6.

From there they controlled the game, with the Panthers making mistakes at the back end of the match gruelling any chance of a comeback.

The win lifts the Cowboys to 7th on the table while the Panthers remain second, but now four points adrift of Melbourne.

ROOSTERS DE-CLAW TAME TIGERS

ANDYP

In a dominant performance from siren-to-siren, the Sydney Roosters have comfortably accounted for the Wests Tigers 40-6 at Allianz Stadium on Sunday night to close off the NRL's seventeenth round.

Coming off a bye with back-to-back victories under their belt, there was some promise that we would have a cracker of a game to finish round 17, but it became apparent early on that this was not to be the case. With some emotion around Teddy playing his 150th for the club and Trent Robinson notching up 300 games as coach, the Roosters came out firing early.

They looked to be aiming attacks down their right side, seizing on the Tigers' left side, which was seeming to jam up and display an uneven line of defence. The Tigers were staying in the game to a degree, even getting down to the Roosters line, but it would be the story of their night, as they continued to give the ball back from errors right when they were looking dangerous. It proved costly, as the Roosters would quickly take advantage of the weak defensive line and march back down to the Tigers quarter.

What would be the first of many tries came at the 14-minute mark after some slick movement through the hands on the Rooster's right gave Dominic Young the space he needed to go over the line. Rattled, the Tigers would allow the big Brit another chance after Conor Watson found some space in the middle. It ended with Young taking his second try at the 16-minute mark.

A penalty for a high shot from Brent Naden on Angus Crichton gave the Roosters the ball at halfway, and a quick bust down their right saw them swing it back in for Terrell May in the middle, coming in too big and too quick, pushing the score out to 16 - 0 after Sam Walker's conversion.

Even though the score looked ominous, the Tigers were still in the game, but their defensive line was opening up canyons for the Roosters to jog through. Still unable to pull it together, a kick on the Roosters line after a sustained attack reaped the reward for an ever-present Luke Keary, and the score looked painful for Tigers fans at 20 - 0, thirty-three minutes in. The first half had both teams relatively even across the stats, but with 4 line breaks to zip for the Roosters and 25 missed tackles by the Tigers against only 11 from the Roosters, it was clearly their defence that was the issue. They did have several chances, which they butchered every time they got to the line, and they were thankful the halftime hooter rang.

The Tigers' second half opened with a different tact of swinging the ball quickly, which may have shown some hope was on the horizon for the young Tigers. But it was to go nowhere again, with Jahream Bula getting to the Rooster's red zone only to pass after being tackled, and the wind went out of the Tiger's sails again. It was clear the Tigers were not going to get roaring, and after some goal-line attacks, the gaps opened up in the 51st minute with Daniel Tupou going over. It only went from bad to worse for the Tigers after some tension was started up in the middle by Api Koroisau against Lindsay Collins, which resulted in Api lifting Collins beyond what the officials were happy with, and he had a 10-minute rest for his troubles. The 12-man team soon turned to 11, with Adam Doueihi sent to the sin bin after a hip drop on Dominic Young in the 63rd minute, which saw James Tedesco go over only a minute later.

Allianz Stadium, Moore Park / Gadigal

The attrition rate of players meant a tired team was giving even more yawning gaps for the relentless Roosters, and Victor Radley came to the try party in the 66th minute, followed by Daniel Tupou again in the 69th. The 40-0 score line sent the Roosters off to sleep early, and some lazy errors allowed the Tigers to finally take advantage down their end of the field, with Founa Pole scoring with Api converting, stopping a clean sheet, but still not hiding the shellacking they had just been dished out. No communication or commitment to a defensive line was the Tigers' Achilles heel, and the failure to nip it in the bud meant they would be chasing their tails for the rest of the game.

The Roosters would likely be celebrating a little more if it wasn't for Joesph Manu getting a fractured hand around the 37th minute, and Coach Robinson won't be happy with the lads allowing a late try when they were clearly in the ascendancy.

MEN'S STATE OF ORIGIN II WRAP

BLUE-WASH

ANDREW FERGUSON

New South Wales produced a near perfect first half of State of Origin football to lead 34-0 at the break, the biggest ever halftime lead in Origin history.

Queensland fought back admirably in the second half, scoring 18-8 but the mountain they had to climb to win this match was too great.

Three repeat sets for New South Wales on the Queensland line eventually was too much and in the 11th minute, Mitch Moses was out on the right side, shaped to hit the trailing runner with a pass, but held the pass up before sending a lovely short ball to his lead runner Liam Martin, who straightened his run as he received the pass, busted through the line and scored. Zac Lomax converted.

A lovely piece of draw and pass by Latrell Mitchell gave the unmarked Brian To'o a narrow corridor, and he dived over in the corner to bag the Blue's second try in the 19th minute. Lomax added the extras.

The points started to flow for the Blues from this point as their mountain of possession and field position was too much for the Maroons defence. In the 24th minute, a flat-footed Moses kicked to the right corner where Lomax leapt high, took the catch over his head cleanly and planted the ball down for a spectacular try. Lomax failed to convert his own try. Five minutes later, Moses at first receiver grubbered through and To'o pounced on the ball to score his second try. Lomax converted from the sideline.

In the 32nd minute Angus Crichton backed into the line and then flicked a pass to Dylan Edwards who made a break before sending the ball to Latrell Mitchell who scored out wide. Lomax converted from the left sideline again.

On the stroke of halftime, the Blues crossed once more when Stephen Crichton sent a good ball out to the unmarked Lomax who dived over to score untouched. Lomax converted and at halftime, New South Wales held a 34-0 lead.

Tempers got the better of players 10 minutes into the second half, with referee Ashley Klein sending both Liam Martin and Patrick Carrigan to the sin bin. Three minutes later, Queensland finally got on the board when Jeremiah Nanai stormed onto a lovely short ball from Daly Cherry-Evans, barging over to score. Valentine Holmes converted.

The Maroons crossed again just 5 minutes later when Murray Taulagi got into some space on the short side before kicking downtown, where Hamiso Tabuai-Fidow got a nice bounce, which he regathered cleanly to score. Holmes converted.

The Blues struck back in the 62nd minute when Dylan Edwards got outside his defender and then past him with pace to score on the right side. Lomax failed to convert.

In the 70th minute, Cherry-Evans sent a long cut-out pass to the unmarked Taulagi, who crossed for a try which Holmes converted, giving some respectability to the scoreboard in a largely lopsided contest.

New South Wales cruising to a 38-18 victory in front of 90084 spectators.

QUEENSLAND REIGN SUPREME AGAIN WITH IMPRESSIVE WIN OVER POOR NSW

JOSH ROBERTSON

Queensland have sealed their second straight Women's Origin series with an impressive 22-6 win in tough conditions in Townsville over New South Wales.

Things could not have started any worse for NSW as a lost ball on just their second touch in possession gave QLD and straight from the scrum some good work from Tarryn Aiken put Evania Pelite through for Queensland to go up 6-0.

Queensland added a penalty goal inside ten minutes to push their lead out to 8-0.

New South Wales couldn't put anything together as ill-discipline and poor ball security cost them and as Julia Robinson was able to go over after Emma Tonegato spilt a grubber kick from Tarryn Aiken and Robinson was on the spot to score. The conversion from wide out was successful from Lauren Brown and the Maroons lead 14-0 which they took into the break.

The Blues needed to get their stuff together and what looked to be a good platform in their first set was pushed back the other way when Ali Briggingshaw nailed a 40/30 kick to put Queensland into good field position. The Queenslanders picked up two more points through a penalty goal to lead 16-0.

Things peated out a little bit as the Blues continued to try and fight back but again poor decision making again cost them as they dropped the ball at least twice within a couple of metres of the Maroons line. The Sky Blues finally did score and it came through a piece of luck when NSW were caught short of numbers and a Tarryn Aiken pass needed to be intercepted by Jaime Chapman and she did racing 90m to score.

NSW still struggled to get any momentum in attack as they fought to get back into the game but couldn't do it and eventually Queensland sealed the win just shy of half time when Tazmin Rapana scored from close range and after Lauren Brown's conversion, the Maroons sealed their 22-6 win.

MATCH PREVIEW

Kelly HOLLIS

Can the Eels slide into the winners' circle against the rejuvenated Rabbitohs?

The Parramatta Eels will be looking to bounce back after a tough loss to the Newcastle Knights last week. Despite a stellar performance from Mitchell Moses, who backed up his man-of-the-match effort for NSW in the Origin series with two tries and three goals, the Eels fell short in a 34-26 defeat. The match saw Parramatta lead at halftime, but a late surge from the Knights, including three tries in the final 15 minutes, sealed their fate.

The Eels were also on the wrong end of a couple of contentious calls, with a questionable try awarded against them and a potential try for Blaze Talagi disallowed. Matt Arthur, son of the former coach, made an impressive debut and is expected to retain his spot on the bench.

Parramatta will be without star winger Maika Sivo, who has succumbed to a hamstring injury and is expected to spend a few weeks on the sideline. This sees Jake Tago debut alongside back-rower Charlie Guymer, who will also make his debut off the bench after he replaces Makahesi Makatoa.

The South Sydney Rabbitohs, on the other hand, are on a four-game winning streak, having climbed from last place after Magic Round to just outside the top eight.

The return of key players like Latrell Mitchell and Cameron Murray has revitalised the team, particularly in defence, where they've conceded only 24 points in three games. Latrell Mitchell's influence has been profound, contributing to 11 tries in six games.

In this upcoming clash at CommBank Stadium, Parramatta will aim to end their three-game losing streak and secure a win against a formidable Rabbitohs side. The Eels have yet to beat the Bunnies at Commbank since it opened in 2019, and the Rabbitohs have won seven of their eight past games against the side from Parramatta.

As a result, South Sydney will be looking to extend not only this winning streak against Parramatta but their 2024 streak to five consecutive victories and continue their climb up the ladder.

WHO TO WATCH: After scoring a double against Newcastle, Blaize Talagi will be one to watch as the Eels take on the Bunnies this weekend. He has scored at least one try in his last six games, so expect him to cross the line at least once at Commbank on Thursday night.

With the return of Cam Murray, Keaton Koloamatangi will return to his favoured position for this game. With four tries to his name for the 2024 season and an average of 161 run metres, expect him to come out of the blocks firing.

FAVOURITE: Coming off the bye and having a four-game winning streak, the Rabbitohs are going into this match as slight favourites.

MY TIP: It will most likely be close, but it's hard to go against a Bunnies side that's in form at the moment. Rabbitohs by 6.

MATCH PREVIEW

Josh ROBERTSON

Friday action returns to the New South Wales North Coast as the Cronulla Sharks look to return to the winners circle up against the Gold Coast Titans.

The Sharks started the season fast but have been out of form in recent weeks have won just one of their past five matches to find themselves trying to keep themselves in the NRL top four. The performances for the Sharks have been concerning after their fans pumped their tyres about how good they were for winning against the Storm and Roosters, they were brought back to earth against the Panthers losing 42-0 and then only picking 1 win in the four games after that over the Broncos.

The performance from the Sharks will have been demoralising as they came from 12-0 down against the Canterbury-Bankstown Bulldogs to fall to a 15-14 defeat after they lead 14-12. The big concern for the Shire side is that they started slowly but then both in regular time and golden point their star playmaker Nicho Hynes couldn't seal the game with a field goal from close range.

A delayed concussion for Sharks winger Sione Katoa sees him ruled out with Daniel Atkinson coming onto the wing. The only other change is Tom Hazelton has been named to start with Toby Rudolf benched after an ill-disciplined performance last week.

Prior to having the bye, the Gold Coast Titans left the NRL world stunned following their 66-6 win over the New Zealand Warriors on the Gold Coast a couple of weeks ago. The Titans have languished towards the bottom of the NRL ladder sitting currently in 15th spot on the ladder with just for wins to their name for the season where they have struggled but already put through some strong performances this season.

The win prior to the bye for the Gold Coast left many in surprise and many fans asking where has this been as they ran riot in a 60-point thrashing over the Warriors. Things just went right for the Gold Coast where they were able to run in 11 tries including 4 to Alofiana Khan-Pereira. The performance was probably one of the best for the Titans especially putting a bad show in the week prior at Leichhardt Oval.

The Titans have had mixed news on the injury front with Jayden Campbell ruled out with a hand injury but in positive news, QLD origin star AJ Brimson is back in the side with a groin injury whilst Jojo Fifita also returns after missing the Warriors game through illness. The other change sees Mo Fotuauka returning from Origin with Josiah Pahulu dropping back to the bench and Jacob Alick dropping to the reserves.

WHO TO WATCH: Naturally there is going to be a lot of focus on Nicho Hynes because there has been a lot of focus on his "clutchness" given that twice in recent weeks, the NSW representative had two chances to make important plays for Cronulla went a miss with a tough missed conversion from the sideline against the Dolphins and then a simple field goal from in front going wide. The pressure has been plied onto Hynes shoulders for a while and an indifferent Origin performance prior adds more interest.

The return of AJ Brimson to the Titans team is going to bring a big focus on his performances and how the Gold Coast are going to perform against the Sharks. The return of Brimson into the side is the boost that the Gold Coast need with Jayden Campbell out. A game like this is a big test for the Titans and having Brimson in might be a big boost up against a Sharks side looking without confidence.

FAVOURITE: Cronulla are well backed to return to the winners circle.

MY TIP: Despite having a good record in their three appearances in Coffs Harbour, the Sharks have been too shaky of a team in recent weeks and the Titans will have a tonne of confidence after their win against the Warriors a fortnight ago and are arguably strengthened with returning players. Titans by 4.

MATCH PREVIEW

Tim COSTELLO

It's a Grand Final rematch but the stakes are vastly different this time.

We arrive at Suncorp Stadium on Friday night with plenty of issues to contend with for both clubs. For the hosts and 2023 runners-up Brisbane, it's injury after injury and a form slump that has seen them plummet out of the eight and now looking like a long shot at a top four berth that seemed possible - if not likely - just a month ago.

Adam Reynolds is still some weeks away from a return that would stabilise the Broncos' gameplay - a revolving door of halves options since his injury not helping a Broncos spine lay a platform for a side decimated by injury and rep duty.

The news is good for both sides on the returnee front this week though. The hosts will welcome back Origin trio Reece Walsh, Payne Haas and Patrick Carrigan, who were all missing for the thoroughbreds' trip across to Auckland. That 32-16 loss was Brisbane's fourth in a row and now leaves them without a victory since they pipped Manly in Magic Round nearly two months ago.

There is some shift in the teamsheet for Brisbane in addition to the returning Origin stars, with Kotoni Staggs (personal reasons) out of the 17.

Mariner moves to centre with Oates returning from injury on the wing. Gosiewski and Baker both drop out for the Origin players returning, but both sustained injuries and would have been omitted regardless.

Penrith meanwhile, are at risk of losing touch with competition leaders Melbourne. Falling at home to the Cowboys last Saturday, the reigning champs were also missing the bulk of their Origin contingent, with only lock Isaah Yeo backing up from the Blues' big win in Melbourne the Wednesday before.

While not as bad as Brisbane's recent run, the Origin period has been somewhat brutal for the Panthers, who have recorded losses to mid-table sides North Queensland and St George Illawarra, while accounting for sides battling for spots like Newcastle and Manly in the same month.

The premiers welcome back Edwards, To'o., Luai and Martin, with Yeo set to start after being benched last weekend.

Schneider, Patea, Toelau and McLean all make way with Henry and Laurie on the bench.

WHO TO WATCH: Just 9 days after Origin II and only 12 days ahead of the third game, the Origin fullbacks are set to meet once more. Dylan Edwards has been in elite form for the best part of three seasons now and shone on the rep stage last Wednesday. His return to the Penrith teamsheet is much-needed after they lacked impact in the loss to North Queensland.

Walsh has only played a single game since being knocked out cold in Origin I - that of course being Origin II - so it's hard to get a read on where his head is currently at. The Sua'ali'i tackle would no doubt have shaken him up and after a disappointing performance in the second contest, he'll want to up his confidence with a big performance against the Panthers here.

FAVOURITE: Penrith have the comfortable backing from the bookmakers on Friday.

MY TIP: All signs point to Penrith but that could just be the reason we see Brisbane get up. The Broncos have a knack of getting up off the canvas when the odds are stacked against them - much like this week. The inclusion of Walsh, Carrigan and Haas to lift the hosts to a surprising home win. Broncos by 2.

MATCH PREVIEW

Andy P

Warriors, beware; dangerous Bulldogs on the premises.

Super Saturday opens with the Canterbury Bulldogs hosting the New Zealand Warriors at Accor Stadium, which has become a fortress for a team defying the odds in 2024.

The home side has continued to perform better than expected while the Warriors are still trying to find the form that gave birth to the cries of 'Up the Wahs' last year.

Scraping by last week in a 15-14 nailbiter against the Cronulla Sharks, Bulldogs coach Cameron Giraldo was pleased his boys stayed in the fight. But with 45 missed tackles, the second-best defensive team in the comp will want to lift their game this week in training to be ready for a Warriors outfit who enjoyed the taste of victory last round.

On paper, it would be easy to say the Bulldogs shouldn't have won last week, but resilience and a desire to win is getting them over the line when it matters. A lack of errors and Matt Burton's boot kept the Dogs in the fight. And it was good to see that even after two field goal misses, Mat Burton had the confidence to make it a third time lucky and give the Doggies a win over the Cronulla, giving them every chance to be in the finals this year.

After a stint on the sideline through concussion protocols, zippy full-back Connor Tracy will be back in number 1. Kurt Mann has served his two-game suspension and will take to the game from the bench.

After what was an embarrassing effort the round before, Warriors coach Webster was keen for his team not to walk by that result, and it seemed to work with the Warriors clicking in the halves, which allowed the team to build momentum in the middle through players like Addin Founa-Blake and Mitch Barnett. The boot of Te Maire Martin and his cool head in the number 7 jersey was vital in the 32-16 win against the undermanned Broncos.

A bonus from the Warrior's victory against the Broncos was no injuries, and Webster has named the same 17 to tackle the Doggies at Accor on Saturday.

WHO TO WATCH: Connor Tracy and Jacob Kiraz are lighting on the return kick, with Kiraz leading the league on return meters. These two workhorses show no fear, while Kiraz is dangerous, being in the top ten of the league for line breaks as well.

Matt Burton's kicking game is one of the best in the league, finding the big meters to finish their sets, allowing his team the time to get their defensive line set for the opposition's fresh set of six. Burton's sky-high bombs will be a feature, and he would love to test the Warriors' back three with it.

Josh Curran, Sam Hughes, and Max King had big games last week. Curran has been showing great, consistent form, quietly going about his duties in attack and defence. You can be sure the tough back-rower will be fired up against his old team and likely inspire the pack around him.

Say what you will about Reed Mahoney's pest persona, but he backs it up with his workload and kicking from the dummy half, which will be ideal for their speedsters to jam the Warriors down in their red zones early.

Te Maire Martin and Chanel Harris-Tavita both clicked nicely last round, and they have likely found their groove; Martin's kicking game will be a good tussle against Burton, with the ever-present death from above of Dallin Watene-Zelezniak ready to finish off as he puts his big fast frame up against the Doggies back three.

Addin Founa-Blake and Mitch Barnett had big post-contact meters last game, and it's not surprising seeing that AFB leads this in the league and Barnett is in the top five behind him. These boys will garner plenty of attention from the Dogs pack as they will want to slow them down to stop any spark of momentum from the Warriors in the middle.

FAVOURITE: The Bulldogs' unbeatable run at home and gritty defence have made them a favourite, and the lopsided performances of the Warriors may reflect these odds.

MY TIP: I like the Warriors, but the Bulldogs are in the right zone mentally, and their defence has been too good. Sure, they missed tackles in a big way last week, but this will be addressed, and the team will put another notch on Accor. Bulldogs by 8.

MATCH PREVIEW

Andrew FERGUSON

Will the Tigers crash?

Clever heading that, because it has two meanings you see. There's the obvious one, that is, will the Tigers crash under the relentless effectiveness of the Melbourne Storm, as they have done in all of their last 6 contests, which has seen Melbourne win all 6 with a combined score of 218-94 (or an average score of 36-15)?

The Storm come into this game having now won 4 straight matches since the bye and now sit atop the Premiership ladder. The first three of those wins were not very Melbourne-y, in that they conceded a lot of points each time: beating Newcastle 36-28, Warriors 38-24 and Dolphins 30-24 – but last week in the miserly Melbourne weather, they were more like the Storm we've grown accustomed to, beating Canberra 16-6.

Scoring points hasn't been an issue for the Storm in 2024, reaching 30 in a game in 7 matches already, however their defence has been far from acceptable for coach Craig Bellamy, one would imagine, conceding 20+ points in a game on 9 occasions.

Now the other crash, is whether the Wests Tigers will crash the Storm party? And here's why there's some substance to that question. Melbourne have played at 43 venues in the NRL and World Club Challenge and have a 41% or better success rate at 35 of those grounds.

And none of those 35 venues are Leichhardt Oval. Nope. Leichhardt is an outlier for the Storm. They've played 15 NRL games there for just 6 wins. They won their first ever visit to the ground in 1998 against Balmain, lost to the OG Tigers the following year. Then won in 2005 (after 4 losses prior), won back-to-back games in 2011-12 (after 3 losses prior) and have won their last 2 games in 2016-17 (after 2 losses prior).

The Storm have never won 3 straight at Leichhardt.

The Tigers had a second short-lived rally before the Roosters demolished them as per usual last week. Defensively the Tigers are markedly improved. Parramatta, Titans and Souths have all conceded more points per game thus far and the Raiders are less than half a point per game better than the Tigers in defence in 2024. The Tigers attack though is meek at best and in that area, they are comfortably last.

This week the Tigers will see Solomona Faataape move from the wing to replace Brent Naden at centre. Charlie Staines will fill the wing vacancy. John Bateman will move from the bench into the back row, replacing Reuben Porter who drops out of the 17. Heath Mason fills the opening on the bench.

For the Storm, they will be without the injured Xavier Coates, whose place will be filled by Kane Bradley. Ryan Papenhuyzen returns to the fullback role, pushing excitement machine Sualauvi Fa'alogo to the bench. Trent Loiero and Nelson Asofa-Solomona will switch places with the former moving to Lock and the latter to the bench.

WHO TO WATCH: Sualauvi Fa'alogo coming off the bench against some weary defenders could be a recipe for disaster for the Tigers. Also watch for Bronson Garlick to feed crash balls to Nelson Asofa-Solomona when he's the lead runner close to the Tigers line. For the Tigers, John Bateman and Alex Seyfarth have been disappointing with their form of late and need to return some of that faith that has been shown them to keep them in the Tigers 17. Bateman needs to run straighter and Seyfarth needs to keep out of the sin bin.

FAVOURITE: Obviously the Storm. Their attack hasn't been too severely impacted in recent weeks with the impacts of injuries and origin, but their defensive structures have broken down a few times, which has resulted in those high scoring games that they've won of late. Tigers simply lack experience, but they don't lack in the effort department anymore.

MY TIP: Storm to win here but they'll do it the hard way and find a way to keep the Tigers somewhat in the match for far longer than they otherwise should. Storm by 16.

MATCH PREVIEW

Rob CROSBY

Two points for the taking in Townsville

One point is all that separates the North Queensland Cowboys and Manly Sea Eagles on the premiership ladder as the two teams prepare to face off in Townsville on Saturday night.

Returning home with high spirits after an upset win over the defending premiers last week, the North Queensland Cowboys will welcome six representative stars back into their line-up.

Stunning Penrith 16-6 at the foot of the mountains last Sunday, coach Todd Payten has opted for greater mobility on the bench with mid-season recruit Harrison Edwards preferred over Thomas Mikaele.

The Cowboys have won eight of their 14 meetings against the Sea Eagles over the past decade and will be hoping to post three straight victories for the first time since 2016.

Surging into the top eight off the back of five wins from their past six matches, the Cowboys have accrued nine wins – with two byes still in hand – and six of their final eight matches scheduled on home soil.

Heading to Townsville refreshed following their second bye of the season, the Manly Sea Eagles will be boosted by the return of strike weapon Tom Trbojevic in an uncustomary position at club level.

Coach Anthony Seibold has selected Trbojevic, the 2021 Dally M Player of the Year, at centre in a backline reshuffle that sees Tolutau Koula shift to fullback and Lehi Hopoate drop to the bench.

Josh Aloiai, having completed a two-match suspension, will make his 150th appearance in first grade in the front-row.

The Sea Eagles hold a favourable record at all Townsville venues with eight wins from 16 visits during the 2000s and have won both of their prior visits to Queensland Country Bank Stadium in the pandemic-impacted years of 2020 and 2021.

WHO TO WATCH: The value of an experienced halfback has never been more apparent and in Chad Townsend the Cowboys have a player capable of going deep into September.

Ranked third for try-assists (17) and leading the league in field goals (3), the 33-year-old playmaker has stood tall in the absence of his representative teammates to get the Cowboys home in matches few expected them to win.

Set to depart Townsville at season's end to return to Sydney, look for Townsend to be heavily involved as the Cowboys strive to back up the resolve shown last week.

The last time Tom Trbojevic lined up for Manly in the centres came just over eight years ago – incidentally against the Cowboys in North Queensland.

Regarded among the best attacking players of the modern era, the 27-year-old has been shifted from his preferred fullback role following two months on the sidelines with another hamstring injury.

Producing some of the finest work of his career as a centre on the representative stage, only time will tell whether the positional shift allows Trbojevic to remain injury-free or curtails his attacking prowess.

FAVOURITE: The Cowboys are expected to prove too strong for a Sea Eagles side that have managed just one win away from 4 Pines Park this season.

MY TIP: The Cowboys are in a position to finish in the top four and this is the type of game they will need to win if they hope to do so. Cowboys by 7.

MATCH PREVIEW

AJ LUCANTONIO

JWH enters the history books as Dragons seek revenge

It will be a history making occasion at Allianz Stadium this Sunday as Jared Waerea-Hargraves becomes the most capped Rooster in history as the Roosters take on the Dragons.

In the Roosters' proud history, only four players have played 300 club games for the club. On Sunday, JWH adds yet another chapter to his storied legacy. The Roosters have been great to watch with the ball, averaging 30 points a game showcasing the attacking transition under Justin Holbrook's keen eye in 2024. Sam Walker has matured beyond his years with a strong 2024, while James Tedesco has been superb at the back, while Dom Young and Daniel Tupou have defied the club's centre shortage to cross for fun this season.

Minds will be drawn back to ANZAC Day where the Roosters unleashed a 60 point massacre on the Dragons. However, given the Dragons form revival since that point, a closer contest is expected between the two teams. So, expect the Roosters to be aggressive up front, especially with the quadruple impact of May, Whyte, Leniu and Butcher coming off the pine. The major concern is at centre with Sitali Tupouniua and Michael Jennings getting the call to cover for the mass casualties at the position. Expect these two to try and outmuscle their opposite number but up against Mosese Suli, that's easier said than done.

Onto St George Illawarra, it's been a season of unpredictability in the way they play. One week, they play well against a side they're expected to lose to, while the next play poorly in a match they have a decent chance of winning. The classic example is a fortnight ago, Manly were down to 13 fit players and still found a way to defeat the Dragons. While last week at Kogarah,

It's easy to see the Dragons will be out for revenge after the aforementioned 60 point shellacking in April. The physical battle will be where it is won and lost for the Red V I feel. Expect big showings from their starting forwards and some much needed impact and starch coming off the bench, looking to frustrate the Roosters into mistakes. Suli may fancy himself out wide in the face of a weaker match-up so expect their left-edge to be a target zone for the Dragons. On the team front, Zac Lomax returns replacing the injured Mat Feagai. Elsewhere, the team is settled with Jack Bird an outside chance to return in the reserves.

WHO TO WATCH: The focus on the Roosters has to be on JWH in his milestone match. What more needs to be said about one of the greatest front-rowers of the modern era. Yes, he can be a loose cannon but the impact, energy and leadership he brings will go down in Roosters culture. His footwork in the middle third hasn't wavered at his age and is still a handful for opposition defences. Expect JWH to fire in what will be an emotional day at the Stadium.

In a game vital to St George Illawarra's finals chances. It is time for Tyrell Sloan to inject life into the future of the Dragons spine. The club has made a big investment in Sloan and it is time for a big return on said investment. With Ben Hunt coming towards the end of his career, Sloan will soon become the leader of the spine and attacking output. He has shown glimpses and promise all the way through his career, but has lacked that big standout game which will allow him to kick on and go stride for stride. Watch for this afternoon to be that game.

FAVOURITE: Roosters are heavy favourites in this clash at Allianz Stadium. The Dragons are winless at the venue in their two most recent clashes.

MY TIP: The omens are on the Roosters side in this one, but I think they have just a bit too much strike power to get home in this one. With JWH's record breaking knock serving as great motivation, it's hard to see this match as anything other than a Roosters victory. I expect the Dragons to show fight all the way to the final whistle and demonstrate improvement on ANZAC Day though. Roosters by 12.

MATCH PREVIEW

Rhys SULLIVAN

The return of Kalyn Ponga looks set to buoy a Knights side looking to crack the top 8 when they take on the flagging Canberra Raiders.

The Raiders are coming off a 16-6 loss to the Knights, their 4th loss in 5 matches. Tom Starling was a wall in defence with 52 tackles, while Kaeo Weekes had a mixed bag - scoring a try but also making three errors. Adam Cook was strong as well, but the team lacked performances from stars Xavier Savage, Jordan Rapana and Matthew Timoko.

By contrast the Knights took a much needed 34-26 win against the Eels, snapping a three game losing streak between their first two byes. Bradman Best was at his dominant... best... with two tries, two try assists, 8 tackle breaks and an absurd 357 running metres. Greg Marzhew recorded a double, Jackson Hastings picked up two line break assists and Dane Gagai staked his claim for a Maroons recall with 8 tackle breaks of his own.

Ricky Stuart has opted for major changes to the Raiders side in a bid to revive their season, notably Kaeo Weekes making his move to fullback permanent with Jordan Rapana sliding back to the wing and Adam Cook replacing him at halfback. Simi Sasagi joins the interchange in place of Jordan Martin, who has entered concussion protocols after failing a HIA on debut.

Newcastle welcome back superstar Kalyn Ponga at fullback, who hasn't played since picking up a Lisfranc injury in Round 7.

Elsewhere Leo Thompson returns at prop after being a late withdrawal last week with an Achilles problem and Dylan Lucas has overcome a hamstring issue to take his place on the bench.

Hooker Phoenix Crossland is in concussion protocol so Jayden Brailey starts and Fletcher Sharpe fills the bench utility role.

The Knights have slowly brought their defence above the league average, now conceding just under 22 points a game.

Their attack is still a struggle, scoring less than 19 per match. By comparison, Canberra score just over 20 points a game but their defence is much worse, conceding slightly more than 26 each time they take the field.

WHO TO WATCH: Kaeo Weekes' move to fullback feels like a make or break decision in the Raiders season. He's been good this season - with 5 tries and 3 try assists through 8 appearances - but he wasn't a traditional halfback, forcing just one drop out while averaging 112 running metres a game.

Fullback suits him better, and Ricky Stuart is giving him the chance to stake his claim before he potentially turns to NSW U/19s star Chevy Stewart.

Obviously there's one man to watch for Newcastle: Kalyn Ponga. Ponga's start to the season was not exactly flash, with just one try to go along with 4 try assists in his first 6 games before suffering a foot injury in Round 7. But one thing is obvious - Newcastle play their best when Ponga is wearing the number one jersey.

As the Knights push for finals football, Ponga returning to even shades of the form that won him last years Dally M Medal would be vital.

FAVOURITE: Newcastle are the most backed in this one.

MY TIP: Just on a morale level, the return of Ponga is invaluable for the Knights. If he can come back with form as well, they might be irresistible. Knights by 12.

SUMMER INTERNATIONALS WRAP with ROB McHUGH

WOMEN'S TEST: ENGLAND 42 FRANCE 0 AT STADE ERNEST WALLON

England's women kicked off the doubleheader of mid-season internationals at Toulouse's Stade Ernest-Wallon with a comfortable win over France, thanks to a magnificent performance from 17-year-old Isabel Rowe of the Wigan Warriors.

France can be proud of their performance, which was more competitive than last year's 64-0 defeat and a sign that the game is beginning to move in the right direction in France.

England only needed four minutes to open the scoring, as Anna Davis opened the scoring on the right wing. Jodie Cunningham's pass cut out centre, Amy Hardcastle, finding Davis, who stepped inside off her wing to score. However, Rowe missed the conversion, so the score stayed at 4-0. England extended their lead in the eighth minute, again cutting the left side of the French defence to shreds, as would become a theme on the day. Good play from Zoe Harris, who had an excellent game, released Amy Hardcastle who was too fast and strong for France's right-edge defence and she barged over to score. Rowe's kick hit the post, meaning that England's lead extended to 8-0.

York Valkyrie full-back, Georgie Hetherington, scored England's next try in the 22nd minute. Harris was the creator again, throwing the final pass to Hetherington as the French defence parted, allowing Hetherington to stroll through and score from close range. Rowe was on target with her first successful goal of the game to make the score 14-0. Harris went from creator to scorer for England's next score in the 24th minute, as they scored back-to-back tries. However, all of the work was done in the build-up by Hardcastle, who held off two defenders, including a remarkable hand-off with her left arm, which sent a French defender flying. Hardcastle passed inside to Harris who scored a well-deserved try. Rowe was on target with the conversion to make the score 20-0, which is how it remained until half-time.

England quickly extended their lead in the second half, scoring in the 49th minute and Harris was involved again. Harris's bullet pass released Paige Travis, who barged over from close range. Rowe was on target with the kick to make the score 26-0 to England. Davis scored England's next try, with England exploiting France's porous left edge once again. Hardcastle was involved again, drawing in the French defence who, by this stage, were so occupied with the threat of her running game, neglected to shut down the pass to the wing, giving Davis the space to score.

Eboni Partington scored England's penultimate try, this time down England's left wing. France will be disappointed with their effort in defence, with England playing the ball close to the touchline and exploiting the blindside, where Partington went through a gap in the defensive line to touchdown. Emily Rudge scored the final try of the night, taking in a short pass from the impressive Rowe to round off the scoring, and a good win for a confident England side.

MEN'S TEST: ENGLAND 40 FRANCE 8 AT STADE ERNEST WALLON

England eventually registered a comfortable win over France in a mid-season which was part of the celebrations of 90 years of Rugby League in France.

France came into the game on a run of 22 successive defeats and, although they eventually succumbed to a heavy defeat, there were moments early in the game where it appeared that they may pull off a shock.

After a fast start, France took an early lead. England debutant, Matty Nicholson, produced an error which gave France good field position. They took full advantage, as Arthur Mourgue kicked behind England winger, Ash Handley, and Fouad Yaha got on the end of the kick to produce a good finish, giving France an early lead. Mourgue kicked the extras to give France an early 6-0 lead. England's forward pack was struggling to match the intensity of the French pack early on, as experienced duo, Romain Navarrete and Julian Busquets set the tone in the early exchanges. When Luke Thompson was caught offside, it gave Mourgue a chance to extend France's lead, which he gratefully accepted, to give Les Bleus an early 8-0 lead. However, two excellent positional kicks from Harry Smith gave England their first real field position of the game and it did not take them long to take control of the contest. Full-back, Jack Welsby, who was England's best player on the night, scored their first try. Welsby broke down the short-side before offloading to winger Johnstone, who returned the ball to Welsby, who dived into the corner to score England's first try of the game. Smith kicked the goal from the touchline to bring England back within two points.

Welsby was then involved in the next England try, as they scored from back-to-back sets. Welsby passed to Harry Newman who ran at the French line and dummied, before eventually releasing the ball to Leeds Rhinos teammate, Handley, who bumped off defender, Mourgue, before scoring in the corner. Smith missed the kick, giving England a 10-8 lead, and putting them in front for the first time in the game. England soon scored again, which was their third try in six minutes and Johnstone was heavily involved in the build-up again. Receiving the ball on the left wing, Johnstone cut inside, skirting his way around six French defenders before throwing a long, looping pass to Newman, who passed the ball out to Handley who touched down for his second try of the game. Smith was off target again, limiting England's lead to six points, at 14-8. Johnstone then grabbed his first try of the night in the 32nd minute. England worked the ball well from left to right, before switching the direction of attack back to the left through the hands of Elliot Minchella, who impressed at loose forward, Smith and George Williams, who then floated a lovely pass out to Johnstone who scored a simple try. Smith's missed conversion meant England led 18-8 at halftime. England's greater strength off the bench had been instrumental in overcoming France's early onslaught.

The second half began scrappily, as both sides were slow to get into their stride. However, England opened their account in the 58th minute as youngster, Matty Nicholson atoned for his earlier error, getting on the end of a good kick through the defence to score an international try on debut. Smith missed another kick, but England were now in full control. England only needed four minutes to score their next try of the game, as the influential Welsby scored his second of the night. The try was created by impressive second rower, Ben Currie, who broke through the line before passing to Welsby to score. Smith, who had something of a Jekyll and Hyde performance - brilliant in general play, but inconsistent from the kicking tee - was on target this time to put the result beyond any doubt. Mikey Lewis started the game on the bench and was introduced in the unfamiliar position of hooker; but his natural running game added fresh impetus to the England attack. Lewis created a try for Williams, producing a brilliant step to break through the French line on halfway before passing inside to Williams for a simple score. Smith added the conversion to make the score 34-8 with six minutes to go.

There was still time for the impressive Johnstone to score a second try of the night, touching down with the final play of the game, stepping inside off his wing to score after good build-up play from Smith. Smith ended his night on a high, slotting the conversion from the touchline to round off the scoring for England. England will ultimately be pleased with their work. For France, it represents an improvement on last year's heavy defeat.
