A huge hand to clubs and supporters alike last week - the tributes and respect shown for Tommy Raudonikis following his sad passing last week across Round 5 matches was second to none. While the Tigers were underwhelming against the Cowboys, there was certainly plenty of emotion at Leichhardt on Sunday - just as Tommy would have wanted. The Round 9 clash at Campbelltown, which the club has set aside as a special day, should be a cracker.

This week our magazine looks at the key issue in the game today - concussion. We also have a chat with Adam O'Brien and pay tribute to Cowboys captain Michael Morgan following his retirement in recent weeks.

Oh - and the crossword is back! Make sure you print off Page 39 (or screenshot it on your tablet) and get cracking on it! Answers will appear in next week's edition. Happy reading!

PAIN IN THE HEAD

IT'S TIME FOR THE NRL TO OVERHAUL ITS CONCUSSION RULES...

WORDS: JACQUI DODD

In 2021 the NRL's concussion rules are under more scrutiny than ever before.

The third round saw eight players ruled out mid-match after failing a Head Injury Assessment (HIA) with the Cronulla Sharks versus Parramatta Eels clash resulting in four concussions alone.

At present, the NRL has already enforced two rule changes regarding concussions following the commencement of the 2021 premiership season. Following the first round, the NRL ruled that players who fail an HIA will need to be cleared by an independent neurologist within 11 days of suffering the concussion.

A change that created some confusion, as some believed that meant the NRL was following the AFL's decision to rule a player out for at least a week. However, that couldn't be further from the truth with five of the eight players suffering concussions last week named for their respective round four matches.

The Inner Sanctum spoke with Associate Professor in Neurophysiology at La Trobe University Dr Alan Pearce about concussion safety and the value of the rules being introduced. With Pearce asserting independent medical assessors are less likely to feel pressured by clubs and players.

"I think having an independent medical assessor is a good thing. Because it takes it out of the responsibility of the club doctor to feel a little bit pressured to get the player back as quickly as possible," he said.

"Whereas someone who is an independent medical assessor doesn't have that obligation. If the doctor is going to assess the player as a patient and say, okay do I see signs and symptoms, what are they reporting how severe are those symptoms that they report, what is my medical prognosis of their recovery going to be like.

"With a club doctor there's always the pressure not just from coaching staff but we know from the research that players themselves can try and pressure doctors to say you know what I've got a headache but I'm actually okay, I think the headache is not from my concussions but I had a drink last night or I was listening to some loud music or I went for a run/jog and I pushed too hard and I think that's what is causing my headaches rather than anything post-concussion."

"So that can also put undue pressure onto the doctor to try and sign them back quickly. So, I think that's a good thing.

"One of the things though having a club doctor is that a club doctor knows the player really well. While the science doesn't necessarily support this I do know that there is some anecdotal evidence to suggest that the club doctors knowing the players really well can actually teeth out what actually is concussion and what may be some other effects. The headaches or nausea may be coming from neck soreness or some shoulder soreness that is impacting on a nerve that is travelling to the brain, there are two sides to the argument."

The second new rule to be announced was the controversial 18th man, not set to take effect until next weekend, for a team to activate the 18th man they will have to have three players fail an HIA throughout the match.

The policy isn't untested with the 18th man being brought into the NSWRL in the 2020 premiership season. However, NSWRL teams didn't need three players to fail their HIA but only needed one player to fail to switch in the 18th man.

Whilst the NRL is looking to avoid clubs exploiting the 18th man rule, the caveat of three players having to be ruled as concussed before the substitution can be brought in is being seen as a purely cosmetic change that will rarely need to be utilised, with how rare it is for three players from the same team to fail an HIA.

Mid-season rule changes are often seen as controversial, with the increase in players suffering from concussions, changes need to be made for the sake of player safety without impacting the general play too heavily.

The fourth round featured a bizarre decision to not immediately pull Canterbury Bulldogs halfback Lachlan Lewis from the field, following a head knock as he tackled Rabbitoh Josh Mansour.

Lewis remained on the field for the entirety of the Bulldogs attacking set much to the bewilderment of fans and the commentary box, before the referee ordered time off and for a trainer to help Lewis off the field.

Following his removal, Lewis failed the HIA and was ruled out for the remainder of the match.

Had the 24-year-old engaged in a play in the additional 90 seconds he was on the field there was a significant risk that he could take a second knock and do more damage.

Whilst it is unrealistic for every player who receives a head knock to be escorted off the field and undergoes an HIA when a player is stumbling around and unable to run following a knock it should be expected that they are removed from the field to undergo testing without a team being able to complete an entire set.

In his fourth season, Lewis is yet to have a proven history of concussions, however, studies have shown that NRL players have a high rate of concussion with a 2020 study noticing that in a group of 11 former players, the men had an average of 38.4 concussions throughout their careers, with one player suffering 125 concussions throughout his career. The study also found an average of 7.7 head knocks per player involved a loss of consciousness.

It shouldn't be dismissed that athletes in a contact sport have an increased risk of concussion but with each concussion increases the risk of concussion and makes recovery a longer process. However, management and rules with less grey area of when a player can return would be in the interest of the player welfare.

Dr Pearce described that a minor hit to a player with a history of concussions can have the player go down and take them out of the game for an extended period of time.

"The scientific evidence is telling us that the more concussions you have the longer or more severe the symptoms and it does take longer to recover.

"Now the other side of it too is that for every subsequent concussion you get, you need less of an impact force to get concussed. So someone, who has a history of concussions, it may look like an innocuous hit to someone but they then go down very badly and they're out for quite some time.

"Because what we see is that the brain tissue becomes more vulnerable with every concussion. While every concussion is individual and everyone responds individually we need to take a bit of a conservative approach and have guidelines for subsequent concussions within a two-year window.

"If they have had more than one concussion then the second concussion needs to have this amount of time out if they have a third concussion this amount of time out, but I think if you have a player that is getting multiple concussions then we've got to seriously think about their future as well."

Along with the introduction of the 18th man in 2020, NSWRL instituted that a player who suffers from a concussion will have a mandatory stand-down period of 14 days, focusing on the interest of player welfare and recovery.

The lack of consistency regarding concussion protocols is a concern for player safety at the top level of the game, as the NRL is often a faster and more intense game than local and representative leagues across the country.

Dr Pearce noted that regardless of the level senior Rugby League needs consistent regulations, and listen to the recommendations for junior leagues.

"A concussion at any level doesn't discriminate in terms of how quickly someone recovers and we should be having standardised regulations at all levels of the game whether it's NRL or D Grade club level it should be pretty much the same.

"Then if we go to juniors then it should be based on children's recommendations of recovery which are even longer."

Fans and experts alike are calling for the NRL to get serious about concussions. In the interest of long term player welfare, there needs to be an acknowledgement from the League that changes need to be made, taking on board the recommendations from experts without rushing the changes in.

RESPONSE TIME

ADAM O'BRIEN IS LOOKING FOR KNIGHTS TO SHOW RESOLVE IN FRIDAY NIGHT'S CLASH WITH SHARKS, WRITES PAUL JOBBER

THERE have been far too many false dawns at the Newcastle Knights over the years.

Inconsistency has plagued the club for more than a decade – they haven't finished in the top four since 2006.

So it shouldn't come as a surprise they still have the ability to dish up performances such as the one they came up with on the Gold Coast last week.

Coach Adam O'Brien knows he has his work cut out to make them a consistent outfit as he continues to search for the missing ingredient ahead of Friday's clash with Cronulla.

"Unfortunately we've addressed some things over the last three weeks and I'm getting sick of addressing them, I want to see them actioned," he said.

"There are things that you just can't accept. I get some media around how passionate and how aggressive I can be because it's about the effort things; it's not on talent things.

"It's about guys taking lazy options and we can't accept that and I felt that we had too much of that (last week).

"If we don't see a response in terms of energy, effort, or (work) ethic ... that will be a concern for me."

O'Brien admitted the Knights were left badly wanting in three of the most important areas on the Gold Coast – aggression, execution and effort.

It didn't take long for the scoreboard to start ticking over almost as fast as Titans wrecking-ball David Fifita clocked up the running metres.

"The way the game is at the moment it doesn't take too many guys to be off with momentum swings and that really hurts you," O'Brien said.

"I thought we had 17 guys (contributing) against the Tigers and certainly St George, but having five guys not playing well (last weekend) is way too many with the way the game is at the moment."

O'Brien conceded it was frustrating that they had already had numerous "soul searching" video sessions since he took the reins 18 months ago.

"We've had a few of these that are productive and I walk away thinking we're going to rectify it," he said.

"But I'm in it too; I was quick to pat them on the back after the Dragons game where I thought they really hung in there through some adversity and was that the right thing?"

"Hindsight will tell me that it probably wasn't so it's not just about the players, it's about me as well.

"The evidence is there we haven't fixed up our consistencies so that's the challenge at the moment."

GOODNIGHT, SWEET PRINCE OF TOWNSVILLE

NORTH QUEENSLAND COWBOYS PREMIERSHIP STAR MICHAEL MORGAN RETIRES FROM THE NRL...

WORDS: VINNY HOLLIDAY

There are certain moments in a footballer's playing career that steal the spotlight. Michael Morgan has had plenty of those. We can all think of at least one. The big one. But there were other moments along the way which epitomise the quality player and person Michael, better known by his mates as Morgo, has become.

Now after more than a decade at the top, the premierships winning, one time Dally M halfback of the year has called an end to his NRL career, after persistent struggles with shoulder injuries over recent seasons.

"I've had an amazing career. One I could only dream of as a kid," Morgan told the media on Friday.

"I've been extremely lucky to be able to come in everyday for the last 11 years with my best mates and that's what I'll miss the most."

It all started in 2010 when the future Maroons and Kangaroos representative was given the opportunity to fill in for an injured Jonathan Thurston, easily the most daunting task for any league player at the time.

The Cowboys would go on to win their round nine clash against the Roosters, with Cowboy #217 kicking off his decorated career.

With 168 appearances in the NRL, Morgan scored 58 tries and set up plenty more along the way. The most notable being his final second flick pass to winger Kyle Feldt during the 2015 Grand Final, a moment which etched Morgan into Australian sporting history.

"I'm lucky to have the career I had, but the 2015 Grand Final is I think right up the top," Morgan admitted.

"I felt honoured every time I got to put on a Cowboys jersey."

Living out his schoolboy dream to play alongside greats of the club, the Townsville Brothers junior shifted from fullback to five-eight, then later donned the fabled number seven, before going onto captain his beloved North Queensland Cowboys.

The Inner Sanctum looks back at some of his finest moments and unsung heroics.

Michael's Origin heroics

In 2015, he made his Origin debut, named off the bench for game one to replace an injured Daly Cherry-Evans. The Maroons would go on to win that game 11-10, but the series was taken to a decider after the Blues won game two.

Coming off the interchange in game three, the Cowboys number six turned Maroons utility player took the most of a lopsided scoreline, scoring a try off his first touch of the game and setting up two others. A slick outside in play by Thurston and Guerra put Morgan through a beaming hole in the NSW defensive line scoring early in the second half. Morgan would then deliver a sublime pass to winger Darius Boyd to cross in the corner.

Playing a total of 12 times for his state and his country, Morgan proved himself as a dynamic utility player. Whether it was in the halves, at fullback or roaming as a defensive lock, Michael made sure he gave it everything in whichever position he needed to fill for the team. The most notable example being his switch to centre in the 2017 Origin series, where he delivered one of the finer Queensland moments.

Down a game and trailing 16-12 with just five minutes left to play, Morgan found himself situated out on the right edge after earlier replacing an injured Darius Boyd. Making the most of a slick set play Morgan delivered an all-time great flick pass to winger Dane Gagai to drop under and score in the dying moments. Thurston would go on to kicking the winning goal, but it was Morgan's heroic ball skills which paved the way.

2016 Semi-final v Brisbane Broncos

Locked at 20 a piece, the Cowboys and Broncos would once again head to extra time to decide who would advance to play the Cronulla Sharks in week three of the finals in 2016. With just moments left in the opening half of extra time, Morgan would back up his halfback and partner in crime, when he gathered in another stellar flick pass from Thurston.

The Cowboys five-eighth found himself on the same side of the field as his halfback, combining to score one of the more awe-inspiring tries of his NRL career. Playing for the entire 90 minutes, Morgan's last-minute try wasn't his only impact on the game, delivering three-line break assists and two try assists to top it off. North Queensland would go on to lose their next outing against the Sharks, ending their finals campaign. But it was valuable experience. Experience Morgan would turn to when he led the team to the 2017 Grand final just 12 months later.

2017: A season for the ages

When Jonathan Thurston and Matthew Scott went down injured in the opening rounds of the 2017 NRL season, the North Queensland Cowboys were given no chance to even make the top eight. Assisted by an inform Jason Taumalolo, Morgan would lead his beloved Cowboys teammates into their second grand final in just three years, defying all expectations and proving himself as a genuine halfback.

Whether it was delivering pinpoint kicks to his outside backs in the regular season or managing his dynamic forward pack around the field in the finals, Morgan stood tall at a time when most thought the Cowboys would lie down.

With 11 tries, 22 try assists, over 7000 kicking metres and 18 forced line dropouts, the 26-year-old received the Dally M Halfback of the year award and won the hearts of the rugby league faithful once again.

Despite falling short of a fairytale finish to their season, the Cowboys quickly became the people's champion in 2017, when they just scraped into the finals campaign.

Spearheading that movement was Morgan. Kicking a field goal to seal a big final win against the Cronulla Sharks, the Cowboys playmaker would continue his hot streak when he took on the Parramatta Eels in week two of the finals, before an incredible playmaking performance against the Sydney Roosters in the preliminary final.

Becoming a father

Last August Michael and his partner Brianna welcomed their first child Penelope into the world. Only just bigger than a footy, Morgan's little girl would win the hearts of the North Queensland faithful when the couple shared the news on Instagram. Michael now gets a chance to share more time embracing a new role as a father and a husband. Some things are bigger than footy and despite his love for the game, Michael now has the opportunity to create a new legacy off the field.

"It is nice to be able to go home to Penelope and Bree [Brianna]. Bree's been on this journey for a very long time with me, so she knows the rollercoaster I've ridden and the battles I've had with my shoulder the past twelve months," Morgan said when he announced his retirement on Friday. "There's other things in life that I look forward to now."

Now I know that you're thinking.

You hardly spoke about the 2015 Grand Final?

Well, some things are just too good for words.

Thanks for the memories Morgo.

Match Preview

with Andrew Jackson

A mismatch of epic proportions looms this weekend as the lowly Broncos face the high-flying Panthers.

After last week's 35-6 defeat to the Rabbitohs, Kevin Walters made quite the statement amid growing criticism of five-eighth Anthony Milford.

"I thought he had probably his best game of the year tonight," Walters said of Milford at his post-match press conference.

"I thought defensively he was much better, very aggressive with his tackling and yeah, I liked what I saw tonight from Milf."

Either Walters suddenly changed his tune on reflection or even Milford's 'best' was not good enough, with the playmaker dumped to the Intrust Super Cup this week.

It says quite a bit about the state of affairs at Red Hill right now, with the club's future vision unclear as a number of key players come off-contract with rivals circling.

Milford was not the only casualty with Tesi Niu also dropped.

Matt Lodge was frank in telling the media on Monday that he appreciated Walters finally taking a "ruthless" approach but unfortunately, save a miracle, the Broncos are expected to be on the wrong end of another thumping this week.

The Panthers are still without Dylan Edwards and Apisai Koroisau but you can barely tell, with Ivan Cleary's men undefeated after a classy 30-10 win over the Raiders last week.

Jarome Luai outshone halves partner Nathan Cleary in that performance, further proving that while the halfback may be the main man he is far from the only game-breaker in this Penrith unit.

Brian To'o once again topped the 200-metre mark and is quickly establishing himself as one of the best wingers in the competition while Spencer Leniu was devastating off the bench.

As expected, Cleary has named an unchanged line-up this week.

Who to watch: If the Broncos are any hope of even getting close to Penrith, they need Brodie Croft to lift. With Milford dumped and Tom Dearden in, it will be on Croft to lead the way as the more experienced playmaker. He has failed to live up to expectations since moving to Brisbane and has even been moved to the bench at times in a bid to spark a form reversal. The confusing messaging from Walters is not helping. Brisbane's last-tackle options left a lot to be desired last week and a similar effort on Thursday will render them unable to build any pressure.

Nathan Cleary, on the other hand, is an example of what Croft can be if he has a clear understanding of his identity and role within the squad. Croft may not have Cleary's varied skillset but the Panthers halfback excels at reading the game. He understands when a long clearing kick is needed to turn momentum or when using his running game to take the line on is the better option. Cleary also is not the type to hog the spotlight, taking a backwards step or simplifying his game if Luai is in a mood like he was against Canberra last week.

Favourite: Penrith are overwhelming favourites.

My tip: On paper this should not be close. A short turnaround and travel time may see the Panthers start slow but they should kick on for a comfortable victory as the game drags on. Penrith by 16.

Match Preview

with Josh Robertson

Friday Night Football heads to the Hunter as the Newcastle Knights look to overturn a form slump when they take on the Cronulla Sharks who themselves have been in the news this week with the departure of coach John Morris with Josh Hannay acting as caretaker coach.

Newcastle have fallen out of form significantly after three straight defeats following their back-to-back victories to start the season. The Knights last week fell to a heavy 42-16 defeat to the Gold Coast Titans last week at Cbus Super Stadium.

Despite having a number of key players ruled out due to injury, the Knights did welcome back Kalyn Ponga but it wasn't enough for them as they were comprehensively outplayed by the Titans with Newcastle unable to handle the impact of Titans forward David Fifita who tore the Knights apart. The issues for the Knights may have been exacerbated by the injuries but the Knights have looked off the pace in the past few weeks which will be a major concern for Adam O'Brien.

The Knights have got some relief on the injury front with Bradman Best, Kurt Mann and Jacob Saifiti all returning to the side after injuries and suspension respectively. The addition of these three players strengthens the Newcastle line-up after being boosted last week by the return of star fullback Kalyn Ponga.

The Cronulla Sharks have been in all the news this week for the wrong reasons with the potential and now confirmed recruitment of Craig Fitzgibbon as head coach for 2022 and the departure of coach John Morris. The Sharks on the field last week will have plenty of question marks on how they fell to a 26-18 defeat to the Sydney Roosters after holding a 14-point lead.

Dominating the first hour or so of the contest, the Cronulla Sharks looked as if they were going to pull off their first top 8 scalp in two seasons. However, their defence was unable to handle the magic of Roosters rookie Sam Walker as they conceded four tries in the final 20 minutes to capitulate to defeat.

The Sharks have suffered two major injury blows with Wade Graham and Josh Dugan both ruled out of the contest after failing HIA's last weekend in the contest against the Roosters. Connor Tracey moves from the bench into the centres replacing Dugan. Briton Nikora's return suspension sees him move straight into the second row with Siosifa Talakai added to the bench.

Who to watch: The return of Bradman Best to the Knights line up will help bolster the strength at the back for the Knights where they have been struggling in their form-slump. The partnership that brings Best and Ponga together can be a big help in attack for Newcastle as his carries out of his own end will be a benefit to the Knights.

As someone who could hardly be described as a fan-favourite, Chad Townsend is regularly coming under fire from Sharks fans and another poor performance could potentially seal his fate in the line-up. Townsend came up with some good plays last weekend but his defence at times was more than questionable and with Josh Hannay set to have a selection headache with the return of Shaun Johnson in a couple of weeks and Townsend could have his position in doubt.

Favourite: The two sides are tough to split on paper and most markets have them marked as equals in the odds.

My tip: It's hard to go past the Knights, the Sharks have had a tumultuous week and the events could derail their preparations for this weekend which were already thrown out by Wade Graham and Josh Dugan being ruled out. Returning to Newcastle, the Knights will be boosted and the returning players strengthen their line-up significantly. Newcastle by 10.

Match Preview

with Emile El-Azar

Melbourne Storm come up against the Sydney Roosters this Friday Night, in one of the most anticipated matchups of 2021.

These are two clubs that are very well-run, very well coached and as a result, they just know how to win. Please forgive this Canterbury fan for being slightly jealous of how these two teams operate. Watching quality matchups like this is actually like watching a game from a higher division.

Melbourne come into this game on the back of a comfortable 52-18 win over the aforementioned Bulldogs. To say they cruised to victory would be an understatement. They actually cracked the 50 mark without even playing (or needing to play) their best Rugby League.

The Roosters come into this after pulling off an incredible comeback victory against Cronulla. Down 18-4 after 60 minutes, they managed to pile on 3 tries in the last 20 minutes, all this with a 5/8th playing his 17th NRL game, and a halfback playing his 2nd NRL game, along with an injury list a mile long.

In team news, Melbourne are unchanged from last week, Harry Grant staying on the bench, and my new favourite player Brandon Smith retaining the number 9 jersey. Stability + Melbourne Storm = Look out NRL.

For the Roosters, Ben Marschke is the latest to take up the cursed number 9 jersey, replacing the injured Freddy Lussick, in what will be his 3rd NRL appearance. Sitili Tupouniua returns to the starting lineup, with Nat Butcher going to the bench as a result. Adam Keighran & Lindsay Collins come back via the bench. Still a strong side, despite the number of injuries sweeping through the club.

I also would like to dedicate a line of this preview to Sam Walker. What an effort last week, let's see how he backs up against the might of the premiers.

8 of the last 14 matchups between these two NRL powerhouses have been decided by 3 points or less, and despite the Storm coming into this at full strength vs Easts being understrength in key positions, I expect this to be another classic. There's a lot to be said for decent coaching, and every player in a squad knowing their role, regardless of their level of experience.

Who to watch: James Tedesco vs Ryan Papenhuyzen. Oh dear, I need to clean up the drool from my laptop. Oh boy oh boy oh boy oh boyyyyyy.

I don't want to hear about representative team debates. Just sit back, enjoy and take in every minute of these two Rugby League superstars entertain you. Well worth the price of admission alone.

Nothing else needs to be said, except maybe add them to a try scorer multi along with the ageless Brett Morris? (Gamble responsibly).

Favourite: At the time of writing, Melbourne were comfortable favourites at $1.35. They're at home, Easts are depleted, so that is understandable, however I don't think it will be as clear cut as that.

My tip: I think it will be close, let's say Melbourne by 2.

Last-start winners clash in regional NSW

The Manly Sea Eagles and the Gold Coast Titans will be looking to post back-to-back wins when they face off in Mudgee on Saturday afternoon.

Securing a much-needed victory with fewer than five seconds remaining last week, the Manly Sea Eagles have been afforded a huge boost with the inclusion of superstar fullback Tom Trbojevic for the first time this season.

Welcoming back the influential local junior after recovering from a hamstring injury sustained during the pre-season, the 15th-placed outfit will be hoping his inclusion coincides with further wins following their 13-12 victory over the Warriors last Friday in Gosford.

Set to play at Glen Willow Oval for the first time after electing to forego the home ground advantage of Lottoland, the match will additionally serve as promising prop Taniela Paseka's 50th first grade appearance for the club.

In addition to Tom Trbojevic returning for only his 20th NRL match since coach Des Hasler returned to the Northern Beaches, Haumole Olakau'atu is set to play his first match of 2021 in place of injured second-rower Jack Gosweiski, while Cade Cust returns on the bench after missing last week with a virus.

Continuing their impressive form against teams outside the top eight this season, the Gold Coast Titans will be determined to continue a strong record against the Sea Eagles that has yielded four wins from their past five clashes.

Tearing the Knights to shreds during last Saturday's 42-16 win at home, coach Justin Holbrook will be hoping his side can continue their flow of points at Mudgee, which served as the site of the club's biggest winning margin (38 points against Parramatta) in 2013.

Naming an unchanged squad despite doubts over the fitness of Queensland representative Phillip Sami (HIA), last week's hat-trick hero David Fifita will play his 50th match in the NRL.

Who to watch: Showing maturity beyond his years by playing out of position and calling for the ball with the game on the line, young gun Josh Schuster has given Manly supporters a cause for optimism amidst a challenging start to 2021. Operating as a stop-gap second-rower due to a crippling injury toll, the 19-year-old has risen above his preference of playing in the halves with 86 metres and 36 tackles on average in his four matches this season. Scoring his maiden try in the top grade last week, Schuster's willingness to attempt a field goal during the dying stages against the Warriors suggests the Sea Eagles have a player of immense talent on their hands.

Adding a largely underrated value to the Titans' roster off the bench, Erin Clark has performed solidly as part of a dummy half tag team. Averaging just under a half of football each week complementing seasoned hooker Mitch Rein, the 23-year-old one-time Warrior has been an effective contributor with and without the ball each week. Off-contract at the end of the season, look for Clark to take advantage of the Sea Eagles' tiring forward pack upon his introduction into the match on Saturday afternoon.

Favourite: Having racked up plenty of points against teams ranked below them this season, the Titans are expected to continue that trend on Saturday afternoon.

My tip: While the return of the man affectionately dubbed 'Tommy Turbo' will bring out the best in the 'home' side, the Titans' ability to score points should be too great for the Sea Eagles to overcome. Gold Coast by 14.

Match Preview

with Lachy MacCorquodale

The firing Rabbitohs look to continue their excellent start to the season as they host the embarrassed Wests Tigers at Stadium Australia on Saturday evening.

The South Sydney Rabbitohs will be expecting to walk away with their fifth win of the season when they take on the Wests Tigers. They come into round six in superb form after knocking off the Brisbane Broncos on Thursday night by 29-points in another convincing performance as they sit in third place on the competition ladder.

Over their last two matches, despite them being against Canterbury and Brisbane, the Rabbitohs have scored a combine 73 points whilst only conceding six. After their round one loss to the Melbourne Storm, the Rabbitohs have responded in great fashion, having convincingly won three games against bottom sides, and a 10-point victory against the Sydney Roosters in round three to establish their intentions for 2021.

The Rabbitohs are genuine competition heavyweights and will be expecting a convincing win over the Tigers. Souths' also get the bonus of Cody Walker returning from suspension this week who will be feeling fresh and ready to go after his week off. His combination with Latrell Mitchell could be deadly against a struggling Tigers edge defence.

The return of Walker pushes former Tiger Benji Marshall back to the bench with Dean Hawkins unavailable after suffering a gash to his leg that required stitches.

After one of the more embarrassing performances in the club's history, the Wests Tigers will be hoping they can give their fans something to cheer about after their four-point loss to the previously winless Cowboys. The Tigers managed to find themselves down by 22-points at the halftime break on a special weekend for the club as they celebrated the great life of Tommy Raudonikis. The players failed to deliver anything resembling the great man as they rolled over in the first half.

The only positive for the Tigers is that they managed to score 24-points in the second half as they attempted to pull-off a comeback. The Tigers defence is again at the centre of the problem, having conceded 20 points or more in all five matches so far this season. This streak even extends into the middle of the 2020 season. The Tigers have now conceded 20 or more points in their last 15 premiership matches with their 48-0 victory over the Brisbane Broncos in Round 10 being the last fixture the Tigers contained an opposition to less than 20 points.

Something had to change for the Tigers and to everyone's surprise it was hooker Jacob Liddle who faced the ax after the loss on Sunday afternoon which allows young Jake Simpkin to make his long-awaited first grade debut after some brilliant performances in the NSW Cup. Asu Kepaooa returns to the side but this time in the centres for Joey Leilua, whilst Stefano Utoikamanu comes into the starting side pushing Zane Musgrave to the bench.

Who to watch: One of the more intriguing battles this weekend will be the battle of the two respective number sixes. One, Cody Walker is the incumbent New South Wales five-eighth and has been on fire so far this year, scoring five tries and assisting another three in his four appearances. Walker has been one of the better players in the competition over the past few seasons and has once again asserted himself as a top player in the competition. He lines up against former Rabbitoh Adam Doueihi, who is new to the five-eighth position, having moved there this season. However, in the 22-year-old's four appearances this season he has scored two tries and assisted a further three as he looks to play in a Jack Wightton type role, a big body who runs the ball close to the line. He is a genuine attacking threat and could be key to another potential success for the Tigers this Saturday.

Favourite: The Rabbitohs are the favourite for this clash and for good reason. Their only loss came to the Melbourne Storm in the opening round of the season and have since won four on the trot as they march towards the top of the ladder. The Tigers have leaked points again this season and there's no evidence that this will change on the weekend.

My tip: The Rabbitohs are in red hot form and will be extremely hard to stop on Saturday evening. Their attack will be too much for the Tigers defence to handle. South Sydney by 14.

Raiders and Eels staring down the barrel of consecutive defeats

As they prepare for Saturday night's clash in the nation's capital, the Raiders and Eels find themselves in relatively unfamiliar territory.

As last start losers, both will be desperate to avoid a rare fortnight of disappointment. In a game that belies its fifth versus eighth billing, there's no doubt as Ricky Stuart and Brad Arthur simmer in defeat that both sides will be frothing by the time the Viking clap springs into action.

Last week at Penrith, Canberra failed to go the distance with last year's runner up. Even without the busy Charnze Nicholl-Klokstad and the late loss of Josh Hodgson, Stuart didn't mince his words, admitting his side simply wasn't good enough. Having tasted defeat in two of their past three outings, another loss could see Canberra slip outside the top eight.

Unfortunately this week they'll be without the injured Nicoll-Klokstad who has been replaced by former Panther Caleb Aekins. Hodgson has shaken away his niggles and has been named in what also marks the return of centre Curtis Scott.

In the season's biggest upset, Parramatta were ambushed on home turf by a white-hot St George Illawarra. Monstered upfront and outsmarted on the edges, in a worrying sign for Arthur, the Eels' composure unraveled under pressure as the Dragons dissected every facet of their game.

Following the match the Eels coach blamed the 14 errors on poor attitude, and with a trademark sneer demanded greater consistency.

The signs of mediocrity were glossed over in victory against the Tigers a week earlier. And even though the loss of Dylan Brown this week to suspension is a blow, the addition of livewire half Will Smith might just be the variety the Eels need.

With the fuse set, the upfront exchanges alone should be worth the price of admission. Junior Paulo head-to-head with Josh Papalii and Hudson Young against the missile that is Isaiah Papalii - if at any stage it flares up, the ferocity is sure to rock Big Mal's statue.

Who to watch: With Parramatta searching for only their fourth win in 17 attempts at GIO Stadium, there will be plenty to watch.

Now in his second season of NRL, George Williams is still chasing the consistency that made his coach a Canberra great. Alongside Jack Wighton, both jumped out of the blocks against Penrith before being comprehensively outplayed. Struggling for try-assists and with just one line break for the season, Williams will need to pack his running boots if the Green Machine is to regain its spark.

Following three unproductive seasons on the Gold Coast that only enhanced a tackle-shy reputation, Bryce Cartwright is the last name you'd expect to see on Brad Arthur's bench. Last week's early error was more cardiac-Cartwright than one time Origin prospect, but with 113 metres the back-rower finished on a high. Although this week won't get any easier, and the former Panther can expect to be targeted by an endless stream of lime green traffic.

Favourite: Canberra are the firm favourites. The last time Parramatta knocked over the Raiders in Canberra was on the back of a Jarryd Hayne double way back in 2006.

My tip: With slippery conditions expected to diminish the quality, the raging passion of both sides should fill the void. In what promises to be a battle of two salty coaches as much as two desperate packs, don't be surprised if this one goes down to the wire like two dogs with a bone. And with only one loss to date, Parramatta probably deserve more respect, but on home soil it's Canberra who hold the aces. Canberra by 2.

Surprise Packets the Dragons Look to Continue Impressive Start Against Warriors

The St George Illawarra Dragons had their 4th and most impressive win of the season last week against the Eels, while the Warriors had arguably their most disappointing performance of the year against Manly.

One of the key aspects of the new and improved Dragons side this year has been the resilience in defence. New coach Anthony Griffin is renowned for the extremely high standards he sets at whichever club he is at, standards which were on display as the Dragons held the Parramatta attack to just 12 points, 6 of which came whilst Tariq Sims was in the sin bin.

The Warriors on the other hand, would be extremely disappointed with their performance against a Manly side who had experienced a horror start to the year. While it may have been close on the scoreboard, it was a dire affair devoid of pretty much any innovative attacking play close to the line and the Warriors will need to make a host of improvements if they are to penetrate the Dragons line enough to get the win.

The Warriors boast one of the biggest forward packs in the NRL, however the recent loss of Addin Fonua-Blake proved a costly one. Considering the Dragons were able to limit the effectiveness of Parramatta's big men, the Warriors will need some more from their playmakers if they want to be competitive.

In team news, the Dragons are 1-17 from the side that punished the Eels on Sunday night, with Ben Hunt hopeful of making a miracle return from a leg injury on ANZAC day against the Roosters next week. Kaide Ellis did enough in his first appearance of the year last week to retain a spot in the side.

For the Warriors, David Fusitu'a is facing a couple of weeks on the sidelines with a hamstring issue and is replaced by Hiku on the wing, however, don't be surprised to see Hiku swap to his preferred position of centre and Adam Pompey to the wing come Sunday afternoon. Eliesa Katoa has been left out of the side altogether and is replaced by Josh Curran in the back row, while Bunty Afoa returns from a one game suspension and replaces Tom Ale on the bench.

Who to watch: After suiting up for the Eels for the first six years of his career, Daniel Alvaro has been one of the more astute signings in the NRL in 2021 for the Dragons. Alvaro has been able to nail down a spot in the starting 17 so far this year, and last week, against his former club, he was impressive off the bench, making 15 runs for 126 metres (62 of them post contact), a tackle break, an offload as well as 38 tackles with only 2 of them missed, all in just 45 minutes. Alvaro will play another former club this week, having been loaned to the Warriors at the back end of last year.

The most consistent performer for the Warriors for a number of years now has been front rower Tohu Harris. Harris has recently re-signed with the New Zealanders until the end of 2024, a move which at the moment appears to be a masterstroke. Last week he made 12 hit-ups for 112 metres as well as 2 tackle breaks, an offload and a whopping 48 tackles made, with Jazz Tevaga the only player making more. Harris has a big role to play for the Warriors over the next 10 or so weeks with the absence of Addin Fonua-Blake, although will receive some welcome assistance in the return of Bunty Afoa.

Favourite: The Dragons are favoured by 5 and a half points in this one.

My tip: The Warriors surprised me over the first few weeks of the season, however I can't tip them after their performance against a wooden spoon contender last week, especially considering the form of the Dragons. St George Illawarra by 14.

Battlers renew rivalry in rare daytime encounter

The North Queensland Cowboys will be hoping to inflict further pain upon the Canterbury-Bankstown Bulldogs when they conclude Round 6 at Queensland Country Bank Stadium.

Defying the odds to claim their first win of the season last week, the North Queensland Cowboys will host a Sunday afternoon match at home for the first time since the 2007 finals series.

Spoiling the party for the Wests Tigers with a 34-30 victory at Leichardt Oval seven days earlier, coach Todd Payten will be urging his players to continue a recent dominant record against the Bulldogs following seven wins from their previous nine meetings.

Naming captain Jason Taumalolo after a false return from injury last week, two-time premiership winner Justin O'Neill has been granted a reprieve in place of Hamiso Tabuai-Fidow (ankle) in the backline, while Coen Hess will start at prop for the first time in his career with Francis Molo reverting to the bench.

Sitting at the bottom of the NRL ladder as the only team yet to win a game this season, the Canterbury-Bankstown Bulldogs will be out to turn over a new leaf in their first appearance at Queensland Country Bank Stadium.

Posting points for the first time in three weeks during their 52-18 defeat at the hands of the Storm last Saturday, coach Trent Barrett will be hoping his side can continue a strong affinity with Townsville having won on 13 out of 19 visits since 1995.

Staring down the prospect of losing six straight losses for only the third time in history, a loss on Sunday afternoon would see the Bulldogs become the first team since Parramatta in 2018 to begin a year winless after six rounds.

Suffering a further blow with captain Josh Jackson sustaining a torn calf at training, English international Luke Thompson will start at lock allowing underrated forward Chris Smith to make his first appearance of the season.

Who to watch: Playing a leading role in guiding the Cowboys to a blistering opening half last week, five-eighth Scott Drinkwater will be aiming to step up following the premature retirement of Michael Morgan. Walking a similar path to the much-beloved club captain as an attacking threat adept at fullback and in the halves, the 23-year-old is set to enter a pivotal period of his career- either guiding North Queensland back from the brink as a dominant playmaker or taking up an opportunity elsewhere with a club better placed to play finals football. Possessing a potent left foot that has routinely produced points from within his own half, look for Drinkwater to leave the Bulldogs feeling blue (and white).

Experiencing a challenging beginning to life at the Bulldogs after playing a prominent role in the Raiders recent success, new recruit Nick Cotric will be aiming to inspire his teammates to a change in fortune. Producing some of the lowest running metres of his career during last week's loss to Melbourne, the 22-year-old former Australian and New South Wales winger has enjoyed middling success against the Cowboys previously with two tries in seven clashes. Chasing his first four-pointer as a Bulldogs player, expect Cotric to be heavily involved with the ball on Sunday afternoon.

Favourite: After breaking through for a vital win last week, the Cowboys have been backed to record consecutive victories for the first time in almost a year.

My tip: While the Cowboys showed plenty of attacking promise last week, the side still conceded six tries in a sign their defence remains a concern. If the Bulldogs can demonstrate a stronger defensive resolve they should be able to get their first win of 2021. Canterbury by 6.

Souths prove too strong for willing Broncos

The South Sydney Rabbitohs have continued their strong start to 2021 by overpowering the Brisbane Broncos 35-6 at Stadium Australia.

Scoring six tries to one in a match where Adam Reynolds became the first NRL player to kick a two-point field goal, the Rabbitohs led from start to finish against an improving Broncos side unable to go the distance.

Picking right up from where they left off last week, the Rabbitohs opened the scoring with an enterprising try involving a cross-field kick, a flick pass and an offload to send Benji Marshall (7th minute) over for his first four-pointer in red and green colours.

The home side continued their strong start after Latrell Mitchell fired a superb pass to Alex Johnston (15th minute), who touched down for his fifth try in as many matches.

Striking back with an important try midway through the first half, Broncos fullback

Jamayne Isaako (20th minute) demonstrated crafty footwork to put the visitors back in the contest.

Scoring an important try shortly before halftime, Dane Gagai sent Adam Reynolds (37th minute) underneath the posts, before the Rabbitohs number seven created history by kicking the first two-point field goal from 43 metres out to send the home side to the sheds leading 18-6.

Taking advantage of good field possession resulting from a penalty, Mitchell (51st minute) showcased his talents to power over for his fourth of the season.

Securing the result on the hour mark, Campbell Graham (61st minute) crashed over from a scrum, before Mitchell (76th minute) collected his second and added a late field goal in the shadows of fulltime.

Next week, the Rabbitohs host the Tigers at Stadium Australia on Saturday evening, while the Broncos return to Suncorp Stadium for a Thursday night match against the Panthers.

Sea Eagles grind out first win against Warriors in Gosford

Manly-Warringah Sea Eagles got off the duck egg for the season with a tense 13-12 win against New Zealand Warriors tonight at Central Coast Stadium.

It was more gritty than pretty but those in maroon-and-white won't care. Manly-Warringah Sea Eagles have their first win of the season, thanks to Daly Cherry-Evans field goal right on the siren to continue their good recent record against the New Zealand Warriors.

The final ten felt like a pressure cooker for both sides, desperate to not be in the losing side again. Warriors had one opportunity through Sean O'Sullivan who sprayed it wide and were unable to set up again. They were gifted a prime chance with a late error from the Sea Eagles but Kodi Nikorima was rushed and kicked behind.

The Sea Eagles had one shot and it fell to Cherry-Evans who has kicked field goals for fun against the Warriors in recent years. The Captain put one over the upright to release the pressure on the side. That showed in the outpouring of relief from the Sea Eagles celebration after the full-time whistle.

Coming into the contest, the Sea Eagles hadn't led at any point this season. Cherry-Evans made it a tactic to constantly kick on third and fourth which paid dividends from the 27th minute scrum. The halfback booted it deep, Jason Saab showing some impressive toe to beat the Warriors to the ball and give the Sea Eagles their first lead of the season at 6-nil.

The way the Warriors levelled was a symptom of the Sea Eagles season. RTS cut through, passed well to Jack Murchie whose ball to 100-gamer Ken Maumalo was knocked by Saab right into the winger's path for 6-6.

Errors had been a fixture of the Sea Eagles demise this season, plenty of times they offered up the Warriors field position. The Warriors though, were clunky in their own attack and despite having the advantage weren't able to break down the Sea Eagles defense.

Warriors have a simple game-plan in 2021. Complete their sets, kick well and they forced enough errors to score more than 12 points. Their only other four-pointer came through former Bronco Sean O'Sullivan, who has settled into his role since Chanel Harris-Tavita's injury, sliced through to make it 12-6.

Much of the contest was played between the halfway, both sides unable to get a handle on the ball. The game turned into a grind between two sides looking not to lose, the Warriors who have higher ambitions will be disappointed to lose back-to-back contests.

Coach Nathan Brown will have to get his side ready for the Dragons next weekend down in the 'Gong.

Panthers go 5 in a row to defeat the Raiders

Penrith have continued on their unbeaten run in 2021, defeating the Canberra Raiders by 30-10 in front of a sell-out crowd at BlueBet Stadium tonight.

The win creates more history for Ivan Cleary's young side, as they become the first Panthers side in history to win their opening five games to start the season. Panthers five-eighth Jarome Luai was the hero, with the Samoan international grabbing the game by the scruff of the neck at the back end of the first half, where his side ran in three successive tries to give Penrith the momentum to go on with a commanding win.

Canberra will lament some missed opportunities that came their way with some poor handling and poor discipline at times just when they needed to claw back momentum off the enthusiastic Panthers outfit.

Celebrating the 30th anniversary of the club's first premiership, the Panthers were provided with a guard of honour from the successful 1991 side in front of a packed house which set the scene for a historic night in front of their parochial home base.

However just like a year earlier in 1990, it was the Raiders who spoiled the party early when they drew first blood, when Jack Wighton ran a strong line stepping off his left foot to crash over for what has become a trademark try from the 2020 Dally M Medallist. Jarrod Croker converted and the Raiders led 6-0.

Wighton was terrorising the Panthers inside the opening twenty minutes, when he again threatened to take on the Panthers defensive line, before delivering a deft grubber for his skipper Croker who unfortunately could not ground the ball in goal in what proved a crucial missed chance.

Raiders winger Jordan Rapana then committed a cardinal sin when he gave away a penalty while in possession, which gave Penrith an invitation to get back into the game. Nathan Cleary then returned his RSVP, when he demanded the ball out the back and found his fullback Stephen Crichton off a set play. Crichton then delivered a beautiful flick pass out the back for Charlie Staines to score in the corner. Cleary nailed the conversion from the sideline to tie up the scoreline.

Penrith then scored back-to-back tries, when Matt Burton scored off a delicious pass from Jarome Luai close to the line to take the lead. Cleary then again converted from out wide and it was 12-6 as halftime loomed.

Luai continued to return serve to his opposite Wighton in the back half of the first stanza, when the mercurial Panthers five-eighth grubbered for himself to score a brilliant individual try before the siren. Cleary again converted the try to give the Panthers a sudden 18-6 lead at halftime.

The game continued to see-saw in the Second Half until Jack Wighton called for the ball out wide following a Hudson Young bust and produced a lovely pass from Elliott Whitehead to allow the skipper Jarrod Croker to touch down in the corner and get the Raiders back in the match and narrow the score to 18-10 with 20 minutes remaining.

Penrith put themselves back in the driver's seat when Charlie Staines scored his second try of the night after some superb service from his centre Paul Momirovski to give the home side the biggest lead of the match when Cleary converted from the stripe to make it 24-10.

Nathan Cleary then snatched an intercept late in the game to race 70 metres to ice the game for the Panthers and give his side their best victory of 2021 so far.

Penrith now travel to Brisbane next Thursday night, where they face the Broncos and look to extend their undefeated season. Canberra return to the Nation's Capital, where they face the Parramatta Eels in a blockbuster home game next Saturday night.

Terrific Titans turn it on against dismal Knights

The Gold Coast Titans have won their 4th straight match at home for the first time since 2016, beating the Newcastle Knights by 26 points at CBus Super Stadium on Saturday Afternoon.

Before play started, the crowd observed a moments silence in memory of Tommy Raudonikis, with the great man's family in attendance on the field.

Things looked ominous for the visitors early, with Kevin Proctor the beneficiary of some Tyrone Peachey magic and the Titans going up 6-0 within 2 minutes.

The Titans defence wasn't letting the Knights get anything going, with Gold Coast winning the field position battle early. Patrick Herbert took full advantage, making the Knights left edge defence look silly as he charged his way over the line. Chris Randall experienced an up and down couple of minutes, scoring a try to keep the Knights in the game, before being assessed to have dislocated his shoulder in the sheds. It was a false dawn for the Knights, who would be well and truly punished over the next 10 minutes, with David Fifita showing great strength to score two tries either side of Corey Thompson chasing through a Brian Kelly grubber.

The Titans were up 26-6, however Patrick Herbert was sent to the sin bin for a professional foul and the Knights were able to capitalise before half time through Starford To'a.

A brilliant play from the Knights early in the second half went unrewarded, with Ponga breaking through the line and creating a broken field situation for Tuala, who ended up being held up by the Titans defence. David Fifita was then put through a hole and burned Kalyn Ponga over 20 metres, scoring his first ever career hat-trick and putting his side up 30-12.

A dream 5 minutes for Titans fans came around the hour mark, with Corey Thompson beating a handful of Knights defenders to score, before some razzle-dazzle play off the kickoff followed. The Titans decided to shift it wide on the first play off the kickoff and AJ Brimson was able to break through a very soft defensive line. He opted to take Ponga on and looked to have him covered, but was eventually forced to pass back inside to Herbert, who scored his second try of the day. A late consolation try to Kalyn Ponga made the final score 42-16.

Next week, the Titans will travel to Mudgee to take on the Sea Eagles fresh off a win, while the Knights will play host to the Sharks on Friday evening.

Sizzling Storm rack up the points as Bulldogs end dour drought

The Bulldogs may have shown life in attack but were thoroughly outclassed in a 52-18 loss to the Storm on Saturday night.

There were immediate signs for concern as Felise Kaufusi went over out of dummy-half, with Fox League's Braith Anasta describing it as "so painfully easy" it was "not a first-grade try."

So much has been made of the Bulldogs' woes in attack but a lack of resilience in defence is just as concerning, with the Storm running in five tries in the first half. Jake Averillo showed the way forward when he came up with a crucial tackle on Ryan Papenhuyzen just as the Storm fullback threatened to race through the line.

It was all in vain though as the two halves Cameron Munster and Jahrome Hughes combined for a try shortly after.

Christian Welch was the next to embarrass the Bulldogs defence but the home side eventually broke their 265-minute drought without point when Luke Thompson crashed over.

It did not spark a comeback though as Tui Kamikamica and George Jennings scored before the break to make it 30-6 at halftime.

Ryan Papenhuyzen backed up his four-try heroics from the week prior to score another stunner, this time tracking down a Jennings kick early after play resumed in the second half.

It was five-eighth Jake Averillo who sparked a Bulldogs fightback though, reducing the deficit to 18 points with 20 minutes remaining. First he put Adam Elliott charging through towards the line, with the second rower drawing in defenders and then finding Averillo back in support. The crafty five-eighth then put a pinpoint kick in for Dallin Watene-Zelezniak to score, although there were doubts over whether he was onside.

Averillo then kicked the ball out on the full but backed himself minutes later to nail a 40-20.

It did not end up leading to points though with Tui Katoa being bundled into touch shortly after. Melbourne then exploded with two quick tries off kicks - the first from the boot of Kenneath Bromwich with Justin Olam the scorer. Munster then put in an early kick for Josh Addo-Carr and it sat up perfectly for the speedster. The classy five-eighth was at it again to put Papenhuyzen through and set up Nicholas Hynes for the final try of the night.

Walker magic sees Roosters come from behind against Cronulla

Sam Walker has shown why there is a big future ahead of him as the Sydney Roosters scored a 26-18 come from behind victory over the Cronulla Sharks at the Sydney Cricket Ground.

The Cronulla Sharks started the faster of the two sides as they targeted the Roosters right-hand defence which brought success very early. The Sharks opened the scoring just four minutes into the contest when Mawene Hiroti was able to get over the line in the corner. Chad Townsend's conversion gave the Sharks an early 6-0 lead.

Thing looked shaky for the Roosters as the Sharks continued to mount attacking pressure and the boys from the Shire were able to get across the stripe when Will Kennedy went at the line and managed to carry three players over the line to score. Chad Townsend's conversion was a poor one and couldn't add the extras.

The negatives came for the Sharks as Wade Graham was forced from the field after a head knock for which he subsequently failed his HIA. The Roosters were able to get over with the first piece of magic by Sam Walker with a floating pass out to Brett Morris gave the veteran a 1-on-1 against Mawene Hiroti for which the veteran had too much strength to score.

A brain snap from Jared Waerea-Hargreaves gave the Sharks an opportunity to extend their lead out to 8 points on the stroke of half-time which they took advantage of and the Sharks went into the break leading 12-4.

The injury news hit both sides with Freddy Lussick suffering a suspected fractured arm during the first half whilst for the Sharks things went further downhill on the injury front as they lost Josh Dugan who had also failed his HIA.

Cronulla despite their injury toll added another try to open a 14-point lead when some cross-field play from the Sharks saw the ball go right through Toby Rudolf and Mawene Hiroti before coming back centre-field where Chad Townsend kicked for Jesse Ramien who took a good catch and somehow got an offload away for Jack Williams to score. Townsend's conversion gave the Sharks an 18-4 lead.

The Roosters needed to find a spark if they wanted to come back into the game and it was Drew Hutchison who found it for the Bondi boys as he ran through some poor defence to score. The conversion was successful and the lead was still 8 for the Sharks.

Sam Walker stepped up for the Roosters with some pure magic as he set Daniel Tupou up with a beautiful floating pass and the NSW winger scored. The conversion was waved away and the Roosters trailed by 4.

After setting-up the previous play, Sam Walker put his side level when he charged for the line through some poor defence as the Sharks defence was again caught in no-mans land as Walker was able to slide through. The conversion from Siosia Taukeiaho put the Roosters in front to score.

The Sharks looked gassed by this point and again Sam Walker's magic was on show when his skill levels were on show as he again floated a magical ball out to Brett Morris under the pressure of 3 Sharks defenders for Morris to get a second. The conversion from Taukeiaho sealed the victory for the Roosters.

Cowboys hold onto bizarre topsy-turvy contest

A game of two very different halves has seen the North Queensland Cowboys take their first victory of 2021 with a 34-30 victory over the Wests Tigers at Leichhardt Oval.

The opening 40 minutes from the Tigers could only be described as embarrassing as the Cowboys racked up the points with some magical football. The visitors opened the scoring after just three minutes through some individual brilliance by Hamiso Tabuai-Fidow as the Cowboys winger chipped and chased through to score.

The Wests Tigers were able to hit back soon after when Daine Laurie was on the spot to clean up a spilled kick from Kyle Feldt and the Tigers were level.

The Daine Laurie four-pointer was the only highlight for the Tigers as their right-side defence was ripped apart by the Cowboys and Murray Tualagi was the beneficiary of the Tigers poor defence when Scott Drinkwater's kick in behind the line was cleaned up by Tualagi to score.

Things weren't going to get better for the Tigers as some individual brilliance from Scott Drinkwater to chip and chase after regathering his own ricocheted kick to score the Cowboys third try of the afternoon. The first half continued to go from bad to worse for the Tigers as a David Nofaluma error gave the Cowboys more field position which they took advantage of when Ben Condon was able to crash his way over the try line.

A poor afternoon for David Nofaluma continued on the Cowboys fifth try of the afternoon when Murray Tualagi chased through and pinched the ball out of a lazy Nofaluma's grasp to score and following Holmes conversion, the Cowboys lead 28-6 at the break.

For the second half, the Tigers needed to find a spark and it may have come as the Tigers were leaving the field with the Leichhardt faithful collectively booing their side off the field as they went into the sheds.

The Tigers turned their first half misfortunes around in the second half when the home-side were able to bring themselves well and truly back into the contest. The Tigers were able to cross through David Nofaluma after Adam Doueihi was able to create space for his winger to stroll over.

Not being able to touch the ball, the Cowboys just couldn't muscle up in defence with the Tigers attack coming at them as Luciano Leilua used some top-quality skill to grab a Luke Brooks grubber kick to score. The Tigers again scored in quick succession when Adam Doueihi was able to drag the Cowboys defence in before putting Luke Garner over from close range.

The bunker then spoiled the hopes of the Tigers when David Nofaluma's second effort for a try was chalked off by Alan Shortall after it was ruled that James Roberts stopped in the defensive line denying the Cowboys a chance to tackle the Tigers winger despite it being initially awarded by Matt Cecchin onfield.

The salt was truly rubbed into the wounds of the Tigers up the other end of the field when Lachlan Burr was able to cross for the Cowboys which pushed the lead back out for the Cowboys.

The Tigers again were able to cross twice in the final 10 minutes first through Tommy Talau after some good work from Luciano Leilua who set up Talau to score in the corner before Joe Ofahengaue crossed in the final 60 seconds to give the Tigers one or two plays to steal victory. An error from Luke Brooks off the kick-off sealed the Tigers afternoon and the Cowboys took their first victory.

Dragons defence keeps Eels at bay

In a fortnight where point scoring has been prominent, it was the brilliant Dragons defence that was the talking point and the deciding factor in the final game of Round 5, as they downed the Eels 26-12 at Bankwest Stadium.

Blake Lawrie was held up in the 7th minute in an ominous start for the Dragons and just a few moments later Jack Bird scored a soft try on the left side. Zac Lomax converted. In the 12th minute Matt Dufty broke through the line, grubbered for himself and looked likely to win the race to the ball but he was taken out by Nathan Brown. The Bunker determined that Dufty would've won the race to the ball and he was awarded a penalty try. Lomax converted from in front.

Both sides struggled to mount any pressure over the next 20 minutes, but in the 32nd minute the Dragons shifted to the right to Dufty, who sent a perfect catch and long pass, while under pressure, to Mikaele Ravalawa who scored comfortably in the corner. Lomax nailed the sideline conversion with a perfect kick. At halftime the Dragons had an impressive 18-0 lead.

The second half was basically a bunch of set restarts, mostly in the Eels favour. In the 43rd minute, after conceding 4 set restarts in almost 3 minutes, Tariq Sims was sent to the sin bin for ten minutes. This immediately saw Parramatta get on the scoreboard in the 44th minute when Isaiah Papali'i ran hard and straight onto a pass from Nathan Brown, close to the Dragons line, and he barged over near the posts to score a strong try. Mitch Moses converted.

A silly penalty conceded by Tom Opacic in the 56th minute saw Lomax score a gift penalty goal to the Dragons a 14 point buffer. It didn't deter the Eels, because 7 minutes later it appeared that they had scored a good try through Clint Gutherson, however it was called back after the bunker found that Junior Paulo had obstructed Tyrell Fuimaono.

With ten minutes remaining, the Dragons extended their lead further with some lovely play by Adam Clune, when dummied right to get past Moses, then he stepped out of a weak tackle by Bryce Cartwright, before passing back inside to Dufty in support, who raced away to score. Lomax converted.

With 4 minutes remaining in the match, Gutherson scored a brilliant individual try when he stepped back infield through some scattered defence, before barging over through 3 defenders to get the ball down for a try. Moses converted. The Eels though were unable to complete a miracle comeback. The Dragons well deserved winners 26-12.
