Welcome to ANZAC Round.

This week we're honoured to share the stories of some of rugby league's wartime heroes, thanks to our writer and historian Andrew Ferguson, a valued member of our LU team.

We move into this weekend of solemn remembrance and commemoration with the NRL competition at an interesting juncture. We have one undefeated and one winless side and a whole bunch of sides jockeying for spots in the middle. Aside from leaders Penrith and premiers Melbourne, it's hard to get a good read on a lot of clubs with deep injury and suspension lists across the board. The next 5-6 weeks ahead of the Origin period will be crucial in setting up each and every side's fortunes.

A dramatic week in rugby league with no fewer than three players challenging the severity of their charges at the NRL Judiciary on Tuesday, following a brutal weekend of footy. You can see the full charge sheet in the back of the magazine on Page 37.

THE 'DOWNS FOX'

HE HAD A BRAIN FOR RUGBY LEAGUE, CREATIVE, SPEEDY, SUCCESSFUL AND SPENT MOST OF HIS LIFE WITH A BULLET IN HIS CHEST. HE WAS DUNCAN THOMPSON.

Thompson was born in Warwick, Queensland on March 14, 1895. He joined the Australian Bank of Commerce in 1911. While at Ipswich he represented Combined Country in 1913 and Queensland in 1915.

In 1915 as War broke out, Thompson wanted to serve his country, but his mother prohibited it. In 1916, his job transferred him to Sydney, where he was immediately snapped up by the ailing Norths.

At the end of 1916, Duncan returned to Queensland where he enlisted with the Australian Imperial Forces. He was shot through the chest in the battle of Dernancourt in 1917, but miraculously survived.

He was informed by doctors that a bullet was still lodged in his chest and would no longer be able to play sport.

Thompson continued playing, lining up for Ipswich and Queensland in 1919. He earned a place in the first Australian Test team to tour New Zealand. On tour Thompson replaced Arthur Halloway in the Third Test, which Australia won 34-23. He was then selected at halfback for the fourth test, which Australia won 32-2.

He relocated to Newcastle in 1920 and played for Newcastle Wests before moving back to Norths. Thompson captained NSW in his first game against his beloved Queensland in 1921.

In 1921, Norths finished the season undefeated, claiming their first premiership. At the end of the 1921 season, Thompson was selected in the Australian squad to tour England.

In 1922 Norths were sporting the most impressive backline in the competition, with Harold Horder, Cec Blinkhorn, Duncan Thompson, Herman Peters, Frank Rule and Dallas Hodgins. Norths annihilated Glebe 35-3 in the 1922 Premiership Final.

In 1923, Norths struggled to dominate the competition, but it was their Round 14 clash with Glebe at the SCG that proved most damaging. Thompson was sent off for allegedly kicking Glebe forward Tom McGrath. The NSWRL judiciary found Thompson guilty and suspended him for the rest of the season.

Spectators claimed the incident was an accident. Thompson was held back illegally after passing the ball and was trying to free himself when he accidentally struck McGrath in the face.

Thompson appealed the suspension and it was reduced but not overturned. Thompson was so angered by the decision that he vowed never to play in Sydney again.

Thompson moved back to Toowoomba and opened a sports store. Despite Thompson's self-exile from the Sydney competition, he was still selected in the last two tests against England of 1924. Thompson played for Queensland again in 1924 and 1925.

Thompson's arrival to Toowoomba brought immediate success. In 1924 he played for Toowoomba on a contract worth 400 pounds a year. In his first two years there, Toowoomba were deemed the greatest team in Rugby League.

In 1924 Toowoomba beat England (23-20), Ipswich (21-10, 31-8 and 33-18), NSW (16-0) and Victoria (47-18). In 1925 the undefeated run continued with victories over Brisbane (30-7 and 22-3), Ipswich (18-13, 51-17 and 3 all) and New Zealand (16-14). The final match of the year was against the 1925 undefeated Sydney premiers Souths, to declare the greatest team in Australia.

Toowoomba won 12-5.

1925 saw Toowoomba claim the first Bulimba Cup, a competition played between representative sides from Brisbane, Ipswich and Toowoomba. They won every honour that was available to them.

At the end of the 1925 season Thompson retired from Rugby League and took up tennis, lawn bowls and golf (where he had a handicap of 3).

He returned to national service in the Second World War serving as an amenities officer in Townsville and Papua New Guinea.

In 1951 Thompson accepted a role as Toowoomba coach, instantly leading Toowoomba to six consecutive Bulimba Cup titles from 1951-56.

Thompson gave away his coaching role to take on administrative duties with the QRL, before becoming a Test selector in the late 1950's.

In 1960 Duncan Thompson was awarded an MBE for services to Rugby League. He became a respected commentator on the Rugby League world for many years during and after his role as Test selector.

On May 17, 1980 Duncan Thompson passed away at a hospital in Auchenflower.

In his final years, he remained involved in the game, helping then rookie coach Wayne Bennett as he transitioned from being a player.

Every decade from the 1930's up to and including the 1990's he was regarded by journalists and past players alike as the games greatest ever halfback. It took the emergence of Immortal Andrew Johns to replace him as the best halfback.

In 2008, during the game's centenary celebrations, Thompson was named as one of the 100 greatest players in the games history.

Thompson is one of the few sportsmen to have two grandstands named after him, one at Toowoomba and the other at North Sydney Oval.

His sports store closed not long after he died.

NEWCASTLE'S PIONEER

REMEMBERING STANLEY CARPENTER AND HIS 1908 NEWCASTLE REBELS

Stanley Franzien Carpenter was born in 1879 and grew up in the Newcastle region with his brother Leslie (whom he would play football alongside) and sister Lily.

Stan started his Rugby Union career as a junior with the Carlton club based in central Newcastle where he became friends with Pat Walsh, who would go on to achieve success in three football codes across four different countries. Carpenter's size and strength for a hooker (he weighed 80kgs and was 178cms tall), from working in the coalmines in Newcastle and on the construction of the railway line near Dungog, saw him quickly become one of the premier forwards in Newcastle. After winning premierships at Carlton, Stan played for Central Newcastle, regularly earning representative honours.

In 1906 he married local girl Jean McDonald.

In early 1908, the New South Wales Rugby League was set to commence, but after talks to create a St. George side had broken down, League President Henry Hoyle decided to look outside Sydney for his competitions 8th side. After a failed attempt in February to form a Newcastle side, Hoyle returned in early April with greater success, thanks largely to a small group of players who were angry towards the Rugby Union after the treatment of local Test star Pat Walsh, who had been dropped from the state and test sides for seemingly political reasons. This group was led by Stan Carpenter.

The Newcastle club was formed and they agreed to adopt the red and white striped jumper of the Carlton club, as a tribute to Walsh who was arguably their best player. Walsh himself had left the country a long time prior, winning a premiership in Australian Rules football in an expatriate competition in South Africa before returning to Rugby Union in New Zealand.

Carpenter was elected as the club captain for its inaugural season, a testimony to the great respect he earned from the players in Newcastle who joined the League, most of whom he'd only ever played against.

Newcastle's first game was against Glebe, who were considered the best team in the competition based on their overwhelming success in the Union game prior to changing codes. Glebe had to work very hard for their 8-5 victory.

Two days later, Carpenter captained a Newcastle representative side who suffered a heavy loss to the New Zealand All Golds side who were returning home after their tour of Great Britain. Carpenter took on the All Golds again just 3 days later as he captained the Northern Districts team. His side was again on the receiving end of a heavy loss. He led Newcastle in two losses against the visiting New Zealand Maori team before earning selection in the New South Wales side for their second match against Queensland. Despite playing well in a convincing victory, Carpenter was not selected for the state side again in 1908.

With James Giltinan successfully luring Pat Walsh from New Zealand Rugby Union across to Rugby League, Walsh lined up alongside Carpenter for the first time in years for Newcastle's last two games of the year against the two competition leaders Eastern Suburbs and South Sydney. The impressive Eastern Suburbs side were unstoppable, with star recruit Dally Messenger scoring 18 of his sides 34 points to Newcastle's 17, which pushed Newcastle out of the top 4 and the finals. The next week saw South Sydney work very hard to come away with an 8-3 win.

Carpenter played in a Possibles v Probables match to determine which players would travel to Great Britain for the inaugural Kangaroo's tour. Carpenter was selected as the tours second hooker, however he suffered a broken leg and had to withdraw from the tour.

The 1909 season saw Newcastle get off to a slow start, winning 1 of their first 4 games, before they almost pulled off a miraculous victory over the visiting New Zealand side. The strong performance lifted the side, who went on to beat Glebe 26-8 and Western Suburbs 34-0 in successive weeks. Carpenter's form again earned him state selection, in a game against the Kiwi's and in 3 more games against the returning New Zealand Maori side. But most importantly, he represented Australia in all 3 test matches against the Maori.

Upon returning to club football, Newcastle pulled off arguably their greatest victory when they beat the undefeated South Sydney 5-0 in the last game of the year before the finals. The win secured Newcastle's place in the finals, however they were trounced a week later against South Sydney 20-0. Carpenter's last match of the year was for the Kangaroo's in a hastily organised fourth exhibition game against the Wallabies to be played straight after the 1909 final between Balmain and South Sydney.

The Newcastle side decided to leave the NSWRL and form its own local competition. Carpenter joined the South Newcastle side.

After such a stellar season, Carpenter was eagerly awaiting the new season with high hopes, however in March 1910, his young wife Jean passed away at their family home in Newcastle. Despite the tragic loss, Stanley changed clubs, turning out for the newly created Eastern Suburbs Newcastle side, earning representative honours for Newcastle and Northern Districts against the visiting Great Britain team.

From 1911 to 1914, he continued his stellar representative career, representing Newcastle, Northern Districts, Hunter & Northern Districts and NSW Country against touring nations, interstate sides and other local representative teams. Meanwhile at club level, he achieved premiership success with Eastern Suburbs in 1913.

Within two weeks after war broke about, the widowed Stanley Franzien Carpenter enlisted with the Australian Imperial Force in the 2nd Battalion Infantry before transferring to the Medical Corps as a stretcher bearer.

Carpenter was part of the infamous mass of Australian soldiers who landed at Gallipoli on April 25, 1915 with the third wave of troops. On the very next day, Carpenter and fellow stretcher bearer, Edward Roberts, travelled along the beach by foot under heavy fire, looking for wounded men. They came across a boat that had been beached since the landing some 30 odd hours earlier. All of the men inside had suffered gunshot wounds, with all but five of them killed. Carpenter and Roberts waded and swam to the boat and rescued the survivors, carrying them ashore, one-by-one, to the aid station while constantly being fired upon by sniper fire. Carpenter's bravery was observed by well known Australian War Correspondent Charles Bean and Lieutenant Colonel Braund. Braund was one of only two serving Australian politicians who died while serving in World War I. The other was former NSWRL secretary Edward Larkin. This incident was reported back to the Australian media by several soldiers.

Braund and later Lieutenant Herrod nominated Carpenter and Roberts for the Distinguished Conduct Medal. Both were later recommended for a Military Cross for their heroic actions.

Carpenter then was transferred to the battle in Pozieres in mid-1916, the scene of one of the most horrific trench battles during the war. It was while serving here that Major General Walker recommended Carpenter for the Victoria Cross, the first Australian to receive such a recommendation in the Great War. Carpenter instead received the Distinguished Conduct Medal and a Military Cross:

"For conspicuous bravery during protracted operations under heavy shell fire. Time after time he went into 'No Man's Land' to collect and tend wounded and it was owing to his fine courage that so few of his Battalion's wounded were missing.

The Major General also added in his recommendation that "Officers and men are unanimous in their expression of admiration for him."

Despite his heroics and constantly seeing death and destruction around him, he still ensured that every year while he was on duty, he placed a family notice in the Sydney Morning Herald dedicated to the memory of his wife on the anniversary of her passing. Surprisingly enough, Carpenter met fellow serviceman Pat Walsh while they were both on active duty and spent some time convalescing near the end of the war.

In 1919, Stan's sister Lily passed away after a severe bout of influenza.

Carpenter remained on active duty for the duration of the war before finally returning home in 1920, where he immediately joined South Newcastle. Later in the year he married Olla Stokes and they moved into their own home in Kempsey, ending his career in the Newcastle competition. Two years later they had a baby boy, also named Stanley.

Stan Carpenter went back to playing Rugby League and despite his age and absence from the game, managed to gain representative honours for the Northern Districts before eventually retiring at the age of 43 and took up coaching junior teams before moving on to senior coaching roles.

Tragedy struck his life once again when in 1933, his son was riding his bike home from school and was hit by a vehicle, killing him instantly, just 2 days after his 11th birthday.

Carpenter slowly removed himself from all forms of sport and lived a quiet life with his wife Olla up until his death on May 31, 1962, aged 82.

Match Preview

with Andrew Jackson

Penrith would have learnt a lot from last week's 20-12 win over Brisbane.

Whether it was fatigue or complacency, the Panthers lacked their usually intensity up front and will be out for an improved performance against Newcastle.

The Panthers could be set for a double boost ahead of Thursday night's clash with fullback Dylan Edwards and hooker Apisai Koroisau both named in the extended squad.

The addition of Edwards in particular would be timely given Paul Momirovski failed to have his dangerous contact charge downgraded, seeing him suspended for three weeks.

If Edwards is fit it will see Stephen Crichton freed up to move back to the centres after a mixed three weeks deputising for the first-choice fullback.

Crichton warmed into the role in the later stages of all three games but at times was caught out of position or came up with the wrong options in attack.

Edwards, widely considered the fittest of all the Panthers, was in career-best form before suffering a broken hand.

Koroisau, on the other hand, was fulfilling his role perfectly prior to his wrist injury – chiming in and out of the attack when needed.

Mitch Kenny is a handy replacement and a workhorse in the middle but Koroisau's deception out of dummy-half is crucial if either Nathan Cleary or Jarome Luai have an off night.

The Panthers were widely tipped to take care of Newcastle the last time these two sides met, with an injury-ravaged Knights team falling to an early deficit.

However, the injection of youth off the bench in Brodie Jones, Tex Hoy and Chris Randall helped the Knights surge back and claim a 14-all draw.

Adam O'Brien will be hoping a similar resilience powers his team to an upset victory on Thursday.

Kalyn Ponga was simply outstanding last week, popping miraculous late passes which were simply undefendable to snatch a 26-22 win over Cronulla.

Ponga's individual brilliance shapes as Newcastle's best chance of breaking a Penrith team that just forgotten how to lose.

Who to watch: The battle between young centres Matt Burton and Bradman Best should be an interesting one, regardless of whether they line up against each other or not. Both are well-developed for their age, fast improving when it comes to dealing with the physicality of the league. Best in particular is well beyond his years in that capacity, with his size and strength allowing him to palm even the most experienced defenders off. Penrith are so strong at sticking to their systems in defence that it will require individual brilliance to crack the table toppers. Ponga, as mentioned earlier, is capable of doing just that but the tackle-busting Best will also prove a handful. Burton, on the other hand, has added motivation to perform with Momirovski sidelined. If he continues to lift Ivan Cleary may have no choice but to keep him in the starting team.

Favourite: You can't go past the undefeated Panthers.

My tip: Newcastle do have genuine game breakers capable of bursting the Panthers' bubble but last year's grand finalists are a class above, particularly in the halves. Penrith by 16.

Match Preview

with Rob Crosby

Unlikely match-up looms as the dark horse clash of the round

The Gold Coast Titans will be looking to bounce back in a big way as they take on the high-flying South Sydney Rabbitohs on Friday evening at CBUS Super Stadium.

Gaining plenty of plaudits for their attacking prowess during the opening rounds of the season, the Gold Coast Titans will be determined to prove their premiership credentials against one of the heavyweights of the league.

Suffering a humbling 36-0 defeat at the hands of the Sea Eagles six days earlier in Mudgee, coach Justin Holbrook will be urging his players to move on from the disappointment of last week and focus on defeating a top eight team for the first time this season.

Sitting inside the top eight after six rounds for the first time since 2014, the Titans have been highly impressive with emphatic wins over the Broncos, Cowboys and Knights, while leaving a lot of room for improvement during losses against the Warriors, Raiders and Sea Eagles.

Gaining mixed news on the selection front with Anthony Don returning in place of Jonus Pearson on the wing, Queensland representative Tino Fa'asuamaleaui is set to miss the next fortnight after accepting an early guilty plea for a shoulder charge. Former Tigers forward Sam McIntyre is set to make his club debut off the bench.

Recording a memorable win in golden point last week, the South Sydney Rabbitohs will be treating Friday night as a danger game.

Downing the Tigers 18-14 last Saturday after Tom Burgess powered his way to the try line in the 81st minute, coach Wayne Bennett will be wary of the Titans following the suspension of in-form fullback Latrell Mitchell until mid-May.

Holding a dominant record over their opponents with 10 wins from their past 12 clashes, as well as coming into the match with five consecutive victories at CBUS Super Stadium, the Rabbitohs have recovered from a poor opening night loss to the Storm before growing in confidence with five straight wins over the Sea Eagles, Roosters, Bulldogs, Broncos and Tigers.

Set to be without Mitchell (suspension) and Josh Mansour (hamstring), Alex Johnston will shift to fullback at fullback while emerging speedsters Jaxson Paulo and Steven Marsters will come into the backline. Keaton Koloamatangi returns from suspension in place of Jacob Host.

Who to watch: Embodying the improvements made at the Titans since the appointment of Justin Holbrook at the start of last year, outside back Corey Thompson has been one of the side's most consistent performers. Providing great service in the NRL and Super League since debuting in first grade back in 2014, the 30-year-old winger has averaged a try and 190 running metres per game this season. Approaching a century of games in the Australia after penning a deal on the Gold Coast until the end of 2022, look for Thompson to give the home side every chance of downing the Rabbitohs for the first time in five years.

Making a name for himself at the Titans as one of the hardest working players in the league, Jai Arrow will return to CBUS Super Stadium on Friday night determined to continue the Rabbitohs strong start to 2021. Currently bidding his time off the bench after spending the past three seasons as a starting forward, the 25-year-old Queensland representative has provided plenty of impact since reuniting with Wayne Bennett with 130 metres and 25 tackles on average each week. Contracted to South Sydney until the end of 2024, Arrow will have no shortage of motivation on Friday night against his former teammates.

Favourite: Coming into the contest off the back of five consecutive wins and a dominant record over their opponents, the Rabbitohs are expected to have too much class for the Titans.

My tip: While the Titans have shown themselves capable of bullying weaker teams into submission, they have yet to assert their credentials against the elite teams of the premiership. The loss of Latrell Mitchell will be a challenge for the Rabbitohs to overcome, but the class remaining throughout the playing ranks should be able to get the job done regardless. South Sydney by 8.

Match Preview

with Josh Robertson

The Northern Territory is the focus of the Rugby League world on Friday night as the Parramatta Eels play host to an improving Brisbane Broncos side at Darwin's TIO Stadium.

Parramatta had been one of the form teams across the competition for the first five rounds before the St George Illawarra Dragons comprehensively ended their winning streak. Last weekend showed that the loss was only a small blip, returning to form with a big win over Canberra.

The Eels started fast with two tries inside the first fifteen minutes in that win, but it was the second half where the Blue and Gold made the biggest impact running in four unanswered tries. The quality of Mitch Moses came to the fore as they began to run rampant through poor defensive efforts from the Raiders. The signs were good right across the park for Parramatta, particularly Moses - whose consistency will be key to his side maintaining a good run in 2021.

There's one change to the lineup for the 'home' team, with Dylan Brown returning to the number six jersey in place of Will Smith, the Men in Black namesake dropping back to the bench. Isaiah Papali'i has been named to start in the second row with Ryan Matterson expected to make his return from ongoing concussion issues through NSW Cup at Ringrose Park on Saturday.

Brisbane found themselves spending the first six weeks towards the bottom of the ladder this season, and it was expected that they would be wiped off the park against the undefeated Panthers last Thursday, but they were arguably the much better team despite a 20-12 defeat.

Coming up against the competition leaders, the Broncos more than matched the efforts of their opponents, and if anything dominated much of the contest. The efforts of Tevita Pangai Junior and Matt Lodge in the forwards set a framework for the Broncos which the Panthers struggled to deal with in the first half. Although Brisbane were kept scoreless during the second half - and with a few questionable attacking decisions - they were still only beaten by the late magic of Penrith and NSW half Nathan Cleary.

The visitors welcome back Herbie Farnworth back into their side, with Richie Kennar dropping out of the 17 entirely after playing in the centres last week. New recruit Danny Levi has been added straight to the bench by Broncos coach Kevin Walters.

Who to watch: After playing one of his best career games, Mitch Moses will be key for the Eels to see if he can start to play at that level consistently. He no doubt has all the talent in the world, but we generally only get to see glimpses of it before a run of average form. Parramatta and their fans will be hoping that it will now be a more balanced Moses going forward.

Another player who impressed last week was Matt Lodge, with one of his best games in a very long time. He has come in for criticism for his efforts in the last 12 months, but was able to outplay the Penrith forward pack last weekend - something few players have managed lately. Coming up against another strong pack, Lodge will yet again need to deliver.

Favourite: The Eels are heavy favourites to win the contest in Darwin. It is important to note that since first taking games to Darwin in 2014, Parramatta have won five of the six contests they have played in the NT. It will also be the first time the Broncos have played a competitive match in the Northern Territory since their 1994 Tooheys Challenge Cup game in Alice Springs.

My tip: It's too hard to go past Parramatta for the contest. They were at their classy best last weekend against Canberra with Moses and Clint Gutherson starring. Brisbane will need to ensure that they can back up last weekend's efforts if they want to push the Eels. Parramatta by 12.

Match Preview

with Emile El-Azar

Cronulla meet Canterbury-Bankstown in the graveyard 5:30pm Saturday slot in what is a pivotal matchup for both teams.

The Sharks coming off the back of a loss (their 2nd in a row), coupled with a savage coach back-stabbing (time will tell if it's the right call), and the Bulldogs still searching for that elusive win to kick-start their 2021 season.

Cronulla lost narrowly to Newcastle, in a match they easily could have snatched, however the loss has them sitting on 2 wins after six games. Canterbury were their own worst enemy up in Townsville, deciding to put in an insipid first 55 minutes against a bang-average Cowboys side, before deciding to show up and display what they are capable of only after going down to 12 men.

In team news, Cronulla welcome back Josh Dugan and Shaun Johnson, with new recruit Will Chambers popping up in the extended squad. Aiden Tolman is out of the side, due to suspension, which should open up their 4th tackle options. Wade Graham and Ronaldo Mulitalo are still missing from the side.

For the Bulldogs, a club debut for Ava Seumanufagai, who takes his place on an interesting looking bench, which also includes the returning Brad Deitz and Matt Doorey, along with Renouf Atoni who has dropped out of the starting 13. Chris Smith starts for the first time in 2021, as Corey Waddell moves to lock. Nick Cotric plays his 100th NRL game.

There's a whole deleted paragraph editorialising about the continued selection of Dylan Napa and Will Hopoate, however this Bulldogs tragic will keep it to himself, and will tweet his frustration instead (follow me on @amul82). Stay positive, Emile. Trust the process.

The last 2 matchups between these sides has ended in a two point margin, Cronulla winning the 2020 game, and Canterbury the 2019 clash. With the self-inflicted coaching fuss at the Sharks, coupled with a desperate Bulldogs side, who is starting to show point scoring ability, I expect this to be another close game.

Who to watch: For Cronulla, I'll be keeping an eye on Josh Dugan. If he is allowed to dictate terms, Canterbury may be in some strife. The return of Shaun Johnson also will be interesting to see against the Bulldogs' young halves.

For Canterbury, it's the halves. Averillo and Flanagan. Jake Averillo is being asked to do a key job, with not much talent around him, and is performing admirably. This writer would love to see him get more of the ball on the last tackle, and to take over some of the load from Kyle Flanagan.

Favourite: Cronulla are clear cut, comfortable favourites, and that's quite frankly very understandable.

My tip: This defies all logic, however I think my Dogs may finally break through here, if only to stop the brainless takes from the mainstream media about not winning a game in 2021. Canterbury-Bankstown by 2.

Cowboys riding winning form, Raiders out for redemption

The Cowboys and the Raiders will do battle on Saturday night at Queensland Country Bank Stadium in Townsville. The game could be a defining one for both of these teams' seasons, as the Cowboys look to prove they can beat a higher echelon side and the Raiders looking to return to the winner's circle following disappointing back-to-back losses.

The Cowboys will be looking to make it three straight wins after they were able to beat the Tigers and the Bulldogs in rounds five and six respectively. Still though, those teams are both sitting lower than the Todd Payten coached side themselves, so they are still largely unproven as any sort of force in the competition at this stage. They still will need to improve tremendously if they are to overcome a Raiders side with their backs against the wall after leaking 30 points in their match against the Tigers and 18 against the last-placed Bulldogs.

The Raiders are in a position not many saw them being in early in the season. They currently sit just outside the top 8 following two losses in a row to the Panthers and the Eels. Whilst both of those sides are sitting high up the NRL ladder, what is more concerning is how the Raiders have lost those games. They have conceded 30 or more points in both of those games, showing that they will really need to tighten up their defence if they are to afford themselves the opportunity to play their attacking brand of footy. That should be the focus for the men from the nation's capital this weekend and if they can defend well, they should put themselves in a position to win off the back of that.

Cowboys coach Todd Payten has named an unchanged line-up from the team that defeated the Bulldogs last weekend. The team should look to repay his faith with a good effort against Canberra.

Raiders coach Ricky Stuart has made mass changes to his side this weekend after labelling "individuals" as the problem following their loss to the Eels last round. Sebastian Kris comes onto the wing for Bailey Simonsson. Ryan James comes into the starting side at prop, with the star forward Josh Papalii dropping back to the bench following a lacklustre start to the 2021 season. Josh Hodgson is also out, with Tom Starling returning to start at hooker. Ryan Sutton moves to the starting lock role, with Emre Guler starting at the other front-row position this week. Joseph Tapine is out of the team this week but is still in the reserves. Corey Harawira-Naera makes a long-awaited return to the top grade via the bench, as does Corey Horsburgh. Iosia Soliola has moved back to the reserves.

Who to watch: Coen Hess has been well below his best for the past few years now. Starting at prop for the Cowboys, he has an opportunity to take it to the Raiders forward pack in what will be a huge game in the context of his team's season. If he can help his team win the battle in the middle, the Cowboys have a real shot at a fragile Canberra side.

Look for how Josh Papalii responds to his benching this week. This could be just the push he needed to help him rediscover the 2020 form that saw him largely touted as the game's best prop. If he responds in a big way, he could almost single-handedly tear the Cowboys apart.

Favourite: The Raiders are favourites to win this one and rediscover some form.

My tip: The Raiders will have a lot of players who have been given an opportunity this week who want to keep their spots in first grade. There are also players like Josh Papalii who will be looking for a big response in this game. It is still a very strong side on paper despite multiple regular NRL players out for at least this round. Looking at the Cowboys side before their first win in round 5, they really didn't seem all that motivated to produce good form and it's hard to see how they match the intensity and talent of the Raiders. Canberra by 14.

Sea Eagles eyeing three straight against luckless Tigers

Vision of Michael Maguire in the Tigers box recoiling like a victim of voodoo is among the cruelest in the competition.

If the listless effort at Leichhardt Oval two weeks ago against the Cowboys was a needle to the coach's heart, then the traumatic golden point defeat to bitter rivals South Sydney must have been the pin in each eye.

The only thing more painful must be the lack of premiership points for their best efforts. Either side of the Cowboys capitulation the Tigers have tested the Eels, and if not for a few plays would have had the Rabbitohs' measure. Now on a three game losing streak and sitting in 15th position with only one win, victory over Manly is almost a non-negotiable if Wests are to remain a serious finals contender.

And while knowing which of his sides has boarded the bus might be a lottery for Maguire, for Des Hasler it's chalk and cheese. While one impressive victory in Tom Trbojevic's return against the Titans doesn't make a season, it certainly shows the Sea Eagles are a class above with the Origin star on the park.

Just as impressive as the improved attack was the bullet proof defence. How a side can leak 156 points in the opening four rounds and then concede 12 in the next two is anyone's guess. But given the confidence Trbojevic instills seems irreplaceable, the big concern for Hasler is working out how to maintain his health.

Now with back-to-back wins after their biggest victory in three seasons, Manly will head to Bankwest Stadium with their heads held high. Although still in 12th position, the Sea Eagles are just one win shy of the eighth placed Warriors and with an unchanged 17 shouldn't be short of motivation.

For the Tigers, Michael Chee Kam comes in for injured centre Asu Kepaoa with Joey Leilua and Alex Seyfarth named to return from the bench. And while Bankwest isn't their spiritual home, with five victories from the past six contests, the Tigers have had the wood on Manly since 2017.

Who to watch: Back in 2004, Scott Sattler and Steve Menzies were skippers when the Tigers and Sea Eagles last met on Anzac Day. The names may have changed but the talent hasn't diminished.

The last time these sides met, a hat-trick to David Nofalo at Brookvale Oval proved the difference. That was last season, and while the 27-year-old's stats are down in 2021, his 143 metres per match still puts the Tigers on the front foot. And having already tormented the Sea Eagles with 10 tries in 11 appearances since 2013, don't be surprised if the bustling winger bounces back to his best.

Travelling Manly fans with a boot load of Mudgee produce left town with an even bigger smile thanks to Tom Trbojevic. Pushing himself into the Titans line from the opening set, the rangy fullback proved unstoppable in fashioning the majority of Manly's 26 first half points.

It made the drab efforts of the opening five rounds seem a world away. Footage from those performances won't bother the Tigers though. Instead, a healthy dose of Turbo vision will be Maguire's first step in preventing his troops from freezing in the tearaway's headlights.

Favourite: The bookies have tagged Manly favourites for the first time this year.

My tip: Tipping the Tigers can be fraught with danger at the best of times, but it's easy to be sucked in when the likes of Adam Doueih and Daine Laurie shine on a regular basis. Unfortunately for the Tigers, timing counts for plenty and they can consider themselves unlucky that Manly are in the midst of a Turbo reunion. Manly by 8.

Traditional Anzac Day Clash Set to Be A Thriller

The Sydney Roosters will play the St George Illawarra Dragons on Anzac Day for the 19th time on Sunday in an event that in recent years has grown to be as much a part of the day as "The Last Post," playing two-up and eating Anzac biscuits. The fixture did not go ahead last year due to Covid-19, which will only add to the anticipation of the match, which is already a game of the round contender.

Since 2002, the Dragons have had the upper hand on the day, winning the Anzac Cup 11 times compared to the Roosters 7. The atmosphere created by the large crowd has a way of producing extremely exciting contests which often take the full 80 minutes to be decided, occasionally even longer.

Who could forget when Matt Cooper scored the levelling try with 3 minutes to play in 2004 and Matt Head nailed the side-line conversion to win the game for the Dragons? Or in 2012, when Michael Weyman got an offload away to Ben Creagh who scored to put the Dragons in front with literally 50 seconds on the clock?

In the more recent close finishes, it has been the Roosters who have come out on top, with Mitchell Pearce breaking a 5-year field goal drought in 2017 to ice the match-winner in golden point. In the most recent clash in 2019, fans were on the edge of their seat with 5 minutes to go when Sio Siua Taukeiaho capitalised on a Dufty error to score the sealing try.

With both sides keen to make up for disappointing performances last week after an otherwise strong start to the year and playing in front of what will be the biggest crowd of the season so far, there is every reason to believe that Sunday's game will be just as if not more exciting than the aforementioned spectacles.

In team news, Brett Morris will return on the wing from a calf strain, replacing Matt Ikuvalu, while Sam Verrills is due to play his first NRL game since rupturing his ACL in Round 7 last year, ironically against the Dragons. His inclusion pushes rookie Ben Marschke to the bench, while Adam Keighran drops out of the side due to a fractured eye socket.

For the Dragons, Trent Merrin has been dropped, with Blake Lawrie taking his place as starting prop, with Ben Hunt an outside chance of returning from a leg injury from the reserves in jersey number 21.

Who to watch: With the news breaking that Victor Radley successfully had his charge downgraded at the NRL judiciary on Tuesday night and will be free to play, it will be interesting to see whether or not his combination with Sam Verrills can pick up where it left off early last year and 2019. There is no question that in 2020 the Roosters missed the dynamic link provided by Radley in attack, however James Tedesco will be the only spine player from 2020 to take the field for the Roosters on Sunday. Radley's combination with inexperienced halves pairing Walker and Hutchison has progressed in the past couple of weeks and the fiery lock will be keen to make amends for his high shot which saw him sit down for 10 last week against Melbourne. When in sync, the Roosters can be one of the most exciting attacking teams to watch, and Radley at his best would go a long way to achieving a Roosters victory on Sunday.

Many were quick to question the logic of incoming coach Anthony Griffin recruiting veteran hooker Andrew McCullough on a three-year deal, however the move has proved to be an astute one so far, with McCullough's cool, experienced head often ensuring the Dragons attack doesn't become as frantic as it has in recent years, while he's also provided his usual reliability in defence, making 319 tackles so far in 2021, only 1 behind comp leader Jayden Brailey. Matt Dufty is also one to keep an eye on, who has proved he isn't just a speed merchant by developing one of the games better cut-out passes which regularly exposes opposition edge defence. The Roosters have previously been exposed by the strength of Will Kennedy close to the line and will need to ensure they are prepared for the skill of Dufty, who scored perhaps the most memorable try in the history of the Anzac Cup in 2019.

Favourite: The Roosters are favoured by 5 and a half points over the Dragons at the time of writing.

My tip: I was leaning towards the Dragons in this one due to the expected effect of injuries to the Roosters forward pack, however, Trent Robinson has named a stronger than expected team which I think will get the job done in another Anzac Day thriller: Sydney Roosters by 1.

with Tim Costello

ANZAC Round wraps with traditional Trans-Tasman face-off.

On paper Sunday's night's clash between Melbourne and the Warriors looks fairly open and shut. It's been fairly difficult to get a good read on the Warriors, a stoic win over the high-flying Dragons on Sunday was preceded by a nail-biting loss to Manly just a week earlier. Which Warriors side turns up week-to-week is often a mystery - the polar opposite of their opponents this round.

The Storm are nothing if not consistent. Even in their two losses thus far in 2021, they have given little away - as shown by the margins in those games. Add to that their stunning record against the men from Auckland - they are unbeaten in their last nine against them.

For the Warriors there's also the knowledge that player's families now have the opportunity for quarantine-free travel following this week's opening of the Australia-NZ travel bubble. Whether that psychological boost is a good or bad thing (or has any impact at all) could well play a role in this contest.

A quick squiz at the team sheets reveals some key changes for both sides. Ryan Papenhuyzen has a shoulder complaint which will see him sit out this ANZAC Day clash, his spot taken in the custodian role by Nicho Hynes. Importantly though, the vacancy left on the bench by Hynes' promotion is filled by captain Dale Finucane, who returns to the lineup after missing the opening six rounds.

Across the other side, there's a new centre pairing with Peta Hiku and Adam Pompey both out injured. Montoya moves in at #3 with Murchie shifting from the back row to pair him in the centres. That frees up a wing spot for David Fusitu'a to return after missing Sunday's win over St George Illawarra. Elsewhere in the lineup, Bayley Sironen rejoins the bench after also missing some game time - Paul Turner is the man to make way, the three-gamer also out injured.

Who to watch: With Papenhuyzen's omission, it almost feels like we've been robbed of a star fullback battle. Instead, Nicho Hynes jumps in for his 17th NRL appearance in his third season of NRL. Having already crossed the stripe once in his four games this season (one at fullback, three from the bench), Hynes is no stranger to the tryline. While the man he's deputising for has big boots to fill, Hynes will want to continue to impress and an occasion like ANZAC Day is a great way to show off his skillset.

By the other token, Roger Tuivasa-Sheck's farewell tour is something special. Across the first six rounds 'RTS' has wowed crowds and viewers not just with his attacking involvements, but with some outstanding and even desperate defending at the back. While everyone expects something electric with ball from the union-bound number #1, his value in this game especially will be in containing a lethal Melbourne attacking outfit.

Favourite: Ladder position, home ground advantage, recent record - even without 'Paps', Melbourne are well supported to get the job done.

My tip: The last ANZAC Day clash between these sides in 2019 was decided by just a single point - and I'd like to think we'll see something similar happen again. If the Warriors can show the defensive steel they exhibited against the Dragons last week then they'll go a long way to making it a close contest, but even then, it's difficult to go past the might of the Storm. Melbourne by 4.

Panthers squeeze past Broncos to remain perfect

Penrith Panthers won their sixth game of the season, 20-12, against an enthusiastic Brisbane Broncos side tonight at Suncorp Stadium.

Cue the Great Escape music - because the Panthers got away with that tonight. Some late Cleary heroics with both the boot and hand helped the ladder leaders past a gallant but still naive Broncos side that showed up for their coach and fans tonight.

In a week where the Panthers were labeled arrogant by plenty, this was definitely not a boastful performance. They looked lethargic on both sides of the field and escaped with the result against a Broncos outfit that gave them a tough tussle tonight. Ultimately, the Panthers remain undefeated and had a cheeky dig with their handshake post-try celebration.

From the kick-off, the Broncos looked much more energised against the leaders. They were first on the scoreboard through Jamayne Isaako's penalty goal and showed some thrust in defense to keep the Panthers quiet. Maybe the bake the side got in the pre-match from coach Kevin Walters worked a treat.

The only frailty in the Broncos defense was when Luke Capewell strolled through for the opening try to make it 4-2. They did fall off some tackles late for Nathan Cleary to stretch the margin to eight but that can be forgiven after being in the tussle with the Panthers for the whole contest.

Half turned centre Matt Burton continued to show his wide array of talents, finishing off a backline move for the Panthers second. Burton has done well stepping in for Stephen Crichton on the left edge and shows the depth last year's runners-up have.

Brisbane never stopped turning up though. Man of the Match Tevita Pangai Junior showed some grace to dive over to make it 8-6. Pangai Junior was involved in much of the positive aspects of the Broncos play tonight and tried to will the side to the result. He had an able deputies in props Payne Haas and Matthew Lodge bent the line with each run.

Panthers showed some grit which they haven't had to resort often thus far in 2021. The game went set for set and the Broncos matched them for 70 minutes. It took class from both of the halves for the Panthers to seal the contest. First, Nathan Cleary nailed the second two-point field goal of the season to make it 14-12 then Jarome Luai danced through defenders before putting Cleary over.

Yes - it is another loss for the Broncos but there was a small sense of hope for them coming out of tonight's game. The defence to keep them in the contest was good and a few moments of class including the pass from the recalled Brodie Croft to Ethan Bullemor making it 12-10 showed Croft might have a future in the six jumper.

Ponga crashes the party as Knights edge out Sharks

The Ponga party took center stage in the first battle between the Brayley siblings as the Newcastle Knights won 26-22 against the Cronulla Sharks in front of 17,039 fans in the Hunter.

Friday's marquee match was dubbed the battle of the star fullbacks but Kalyn Ponga and William Kennedy almost stole the show in a see-sawing battle in the Hunter. Ponga took the chocolates with the match winner for Newcastle in a pulsating contest.

Knights fullback Ponga dealt with a stomach virus but he left the Sharks with a headache after full-time. Ponga scored twice including the match-winner and was involved in the Knights three other tries to put a tough stretch behind the novacastrains with a stirring win.

Thrust into the game in the early exchanges after Hymel Hunt's injury. Interchange forward Bordie Jones typified the effort from the Knights tonight. He cleaned up several attacking kicks from the Sharks and got a well deserved four pointer. Coach Adam O'Brien will be delighted to be able to sing the song after three straight defeats which had them on the brink of their season being in danger.

It had been a turbulent week for the Sharks with the John Morris saga but there was plenty to enjoy from the shire side tonight. William Kennedy and Matt Moylan ran the show in attack and Kennedy showed off his passing skills to match it with his fullback opposite him. Unfortunately, it was another close loss for Josh Hannay in his first game as Sharks interim boss.

Trailing by eight at one point, the Sharks dominated the second half. They completed every set which saw them overturn the deficit through Mawene Hiroti, makeshift winger Connor Tracey and the returning Briton Nikora combined with a superb conversion from Chad Townsend had them ahead 22-20.

For the majority of the contest though, the Knights threatened to bust open the contest. Ponga with some silky touches to put Mitch Barnett after the fullback had opened the scoring himself with a sweep play. Kurt Mann showed some grit to beat the chasing Sharks back to have them up 14-6 at the break.

When Ponga put Jones across for their fourth to make it 20-16, it seemed like the home side were strolling to the win tonight. Sharks showed heart to stay in the contest and push the Knights but the home side through their star fullback got their third win of the season.

The only blight for Ponga all night was his mis-timed leap which gave the Sharks their opening four-pointer through Jesse Ramien. Otherwise, Ponga deserved his Man of the Match award in the win.

Storm wild about Harry as they steamroll the Roosters

Melbourne have defeated the Sydney Roosters 20-4 in a dominant display at AAMI Park tonight to further flex their premiership credentials for 2021.

Storm hooker Harry Grant who started from the bench ignited his side in a dominant performance from the Queensland number 9, scoring a try and having a hand in two more in just his fourth game in Storm colours.

The Roosters will be disappointed with their second half performance, after a brave effort in the first period managing to hold onto a 4-0 deficit at the break despite being starved off possession. It was tough going in the second half however for the Tricolours with Trent Robinson's side desperately missing the big match experience in the halves that they have enjoyed for many seasons.

The match between two of the competition heavyweights promised to add another colourful chapter to the recent fierce rivalry between both clubs. Minutes into the match it did just that, when rookie halfback Sam Walker rolled a kick in goal for a flying Josh Morris who failed to ground the ball and in the process his elbow accidentally collected Storm fullback Ryan Papenhuyzen's head. The in-form back Papenhuyzen was then sent from the field for a HIA.

With their goalkicker off the field, the Storm were offered a gift two points with the Roosters on the back foot, but Storm five-eighth Cameron Munster took the kick and missed an easy chance to take the lead.

The game then hit a flashpoint, when Roosters lock Victor Radley was sent to the Sin Bin for a high shot on Munster which had the Storm on edge with Papenhuyzen already on the sideline. Fortunately for the home side, Papenhuyzen passed his HIA and returned in time to get his side on the scoreboard first. Melbourne were then awarded a gift two points when Roosters backrower Sitali Tupouniua was penalised for holding on too long to Nelson Asofa-Solomona in the ruck.

The Tricolours were making some uncharacteristic errors and they were on the ropes as the halftime siren neared. Melbourne then doubled their lead when Radley returned to the field and gave away a penalty for an illegal strip and Papenhuyzen doubled his side's lead to 4-0 at halftime in a brutal opening stanza.

After the break, the Storm continued with the relentless wave of attack towards the Roosters line and it was Harry Grant who pulled the trigger from dummy half when he found his number seven Jahrome Hughes out the back for the Storm halfback to score the first try of the night. Papenhuyzen converted and it was 10-0 to the home side.

The Storm again charged downfield and with Grant and Brandon Smith interchanging at dummy half, Ryan Papenhuyzen then hit a great line to score next to the posts and give Melbourne a 14-point lead with 20 minutes remaining.

Harry Grant continued his outstanding cameo from the bench when the nuggety hooker crashed over from dummy half close to the line to ice the game for the Storm as they jumped out to a 20-0 lead with 10 minutes remaining following the conversion from Papenhuyzen.

Roosters winger Matt Ikuvalu then scored a consolation try off a clever kick from James Tedesco to get the Roosters on the scoreboard as the siren sounded to round out a 20-4 win for Melbourne.

Melbourne now has a long turn around until ANZAC Day where they play the Warriors back at home, while the Roosters also move focus to their own ANZAC Day traditional clash where they face St George at the Sydney Cricket Ground.

Trbojevic-inspired Sea Eagles spank hapless Titans in huge upset

The Manly-Warringah Sea Eagles have won their second consecutive match in 2021, beating the Gold Coast Titans by 36 points to nil in one of the biggest upsets of the season.

The Sea Eagles opened the scoring at the 6 minute mark courtesy of a penalty goal, and the defensive pressure applied to the Titans in their next set saw Manly in prime position to extend that lead. They did just that through Brad Parker, who went straight through the Titans defence, while Garrick's conversion made it 8-0.

It was ominous for the Titans later on, with Lachlan Croker making a clean break up the middle of the field and the Gold Coast defence unable to scramble sufficiently, with Reuben Garrick scoring himself in the next couple of plays.

That try was the start of a 5 minute period of death for the Titans, with Tom Trbojevic dummied his way through the defensive line and burning AJ Brimson on the outside to score, while just 2 minutes later on the first set off the kickoff he went right through again and linked up with Jason Saab who scored the try that made it 26-0 in 26 minutes.

There were no points scored for the rest of the half and the Titans looked like they might put up a bit more of a fight in the second 40 than the first one, getting on the attack early courtesy of a shift to the left where David Fifita was looking, while the pressure was compounded after Brimson was taken out by Jake Trbojevic off the ball in back play.

They had all the ball and field position in the first 5 minutes, however the Titans did not look threatening in the slightest and failed to put any points on the board over 14 or 15 tackles in opposition territory. Their grubber on the last tackle was trapped by Morgan Harper who took off into open space and set up Jason Saab for his second of the afternoon, with Manly scoring the first points of the half with their first touch of the half.

It was a scrappy period that followed, with both sides struggling to complete sets. At one point Kevin Proctor looked to be over for all money, but he dropped it cold and gave Manly a 7 tackle set.

Manly eventually got the ball in good attacking position and a superb cutout ball from Kieran Foran found Reuben Garrick, who put the foot down to go in for his second try of the day. Sean Keppie thought that he had his first try in the NRL, however the bunker intervened and determined that Brad Parker had knocked on in the lead-up.

Burgess buries Tigers in golden point epic

A Thomas Burgess try has broken the hearts of the Tigers in a 18-14 golden point thriller at Stadium Australia.

Burgess charged right through the middle and seemed to have stole the victory, swamped on by teammates.

Gerard Sutton though called play on as Luke Brooks raced away to score under the posts. Chaos ensued as the call went upstairs but in heartbreaking scenes for the Tigers the replay would show Burgess had grounded the ball, with coach Michael Maguire left dejected afterwards in the box.

It was a devastating finish for the Tigers, who were vastly improved from last week's loss to the Cowboys.

Doueih impressed early with a pinpoint kicking game that earned the Tigers three-straight dropouts.

It did not lead to any points though, with Michael Maguire's men lacking any real variation or imagination in attack.

Doueih then was guilty of rushing out in defence in the lead-up to the first try which saw

Cameron Murray burst through and score.

A slick left-edge play looked to have put Alex Johnston over for the home side's second but replays would later show his hand went into touch before grounding the ball.

It proved a critical turning point with the Tigers hitting back soon after. David Nofoaluma raced down the left touchline after Luke Brooks cleverly brought the defence coming in after shaping to pass to decoy runner Asu Kepaoo. The Tigers winger then kicked inside for Daine Laurie. It saw both sides locked at 6-all heading into the sheds at halftime.

The Tigers carried their confidence into the second and it was Laurie threatening early with slicing runs. Doueih then turned creator once more, feigning to kick then pass long before playing it short to put Luke Garner through a gaping hole.

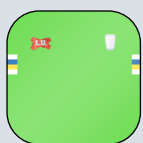

The Tigers were much-improved from last week's Leichhardt embarrassment but could not hold out the Rabbitohs with Cody Walker surging through off a lovely short ball from Tevita Tatola. He then slowed down for support, finding Dane Gagai out wide.

Adam Reynolds later nailed a two-point field goal to level the scores but missed a crucial chance at the one point to see the game go to golden point.

The Tigers entered the extra stanza down a man after Tommy Talau pulled at Walker's legs from an offside position in the dying stages of the second half.

Burgess would go on to score the match-winner.

OUR REPORT with JOSH ROBERTSON

The Blue and Gold show silences Canberra crowd

The Parramatta Eels have wiped out last weeks poor performance after taking a dominant 35-10 victory over the Canberra Raiders at GIO Stadium.

Two sides that were dominated last weekend were looking to make a big impact early in the contest which is exactly what the Parramatta Eels did when they were able to score inside just three minutes. The Eels were gifted field position after a Jordan Rapana error and in the ensuing set, Reed Mahoney's decision to go short side on tackle 5 worked a treat as Isaiah Papali'i crossed over to score.

The Green Machine were able to hit back soon after when Jordan Rapana went from Zero to Hero when he was able to get on the outside of Blake Ferguson to score in the corner. The conversion attempt from Croker went across the face of the posts.

Isaiah Papali'i was causing problems for the Raiders all night and it was his efforts on the right that created space for Maika Sivo to cross after a good ball from Clint Gutherson. Mitch Moses' conversion from the sideline pushed the margin out to 8 points for the Eels.

Going straight through the middle of the park put the Raiders in good field position and Josh Hodgson's efforts to go through the middle, created space as the Eels defenders were left grasping at air before Hodgson found his English compatriot George Williams to score. The conversion from Jarrod Croker closed the gap to within two points.

The second half was a totally one-sided affair with the Parramatta Eels dominating and it was Isaiah Papali'i who got scoring going once again. The Eels shifted left and a pass from Gutherson to Opacic was plucked out of the air by Papali'i who got over to score his second try of the game.

A piece of brilliance from Mitchell Moses extended the lead for the Eels when Moses started a top-quality sequence of play when he spread the ball wide before getting it back and stepping his way through the middle before the ball ended up with Shaun Lane who scored.

The final ten minutes was when Parramatta really put the Raiders to the sword with Reed Mahoney crossing after some more Mitch Moses skill when his pinpoint kick was tapped back by Shaun Lane to Nathan Brown before finding Reed Mahoney who was backing up to score.

Mitch Moses added a field goal to push the score out to 28-10 after Ben Cummins needed the bunker to confirm that after his attempt hit the post, it dropped over the crossbar. The Eels then added a try on the stroke of full time when Clint Gutherson went through some flimsy Raiders defence to score. Mitch Moses sealed the victory with his fifth conversion of the night and the Eels took a 35-10 victory.

Warriors end Dragons streak

Roger Tuivasa-Sheck celebrated his 100th game for the Warriors with a starring role in a hard fought 20-14 Warriors win over the red-hot Dragons.

Both sides started the game running with power and playing at a top speed. Completion rates for both sides were very near perfect for the whole game.

In the 8th minute the Dragons put the ball through the hands on the left side - Adam Clune to Corey Norman then onto Matt Dufty, who held up a nice pass for Cody Ramsay who then scored in the corner. Zac Lomax's sideline conversion hit the upright and was waved away.

The Warriors hit back just five minutes later after some nice play by Wayde Egan at dummy half and 5 metres shy of the tryline. He shaped to pass right and then ran left before dishing a beautiful short ball to Tohu Harris who twisted in the goal line tackle and fell over the line for a good try next to the uprights. Kodi Nikorima converted.

Less than 2 minutes later, the Warriors extended their lead when Nikorima grubbered into the Dragon's ingoal, where the ball bounced awkwardly for Dufty, who almost grounded the ball, but it was Paul Turner following through who did force the ball for a try. Nikorima converted.

Ten minutes before halftime, the Dragons attacked down the right side, where Dufty threw a lovely cut-out pass to Mikaele Ravalawa who channelled his inner Eric Grothe to get the ball down despite having defenders smashing into him and trying to push him into touch. Lomax just missed the sideline conversion attempt. At halftime, it was 2 tries apiece, but the Warriors led 12-8.

The Bunker denied both sides a try in the opening 6 minutes of the second half. In the 43rd minute, a Nikorima grubber was grounded by Egan on the Dragons dead ball line and three minutes later Ramsay tapped a cross-field kick to Paul Vaughan who scored, only for the pass from Ramsay ruled to have gone forward.

Right on the hour mark, the Dragons scored again when Clune ran up to the line and grubbered between the posts before Matt Dufty came flying through and grounded the ball before it rolled dead to score. Lomax converted from almost in front to give the Dragons a 14-12 lead.

The Warriors hit back in the 67th minute when Tuivasa-Sheck received the ball out the back on the right side, shrugged off the tackle by Jack Bird and then burst through the gap in the Dragons edge defence to slam the ball down for a well-deserved try. Nikorima converted from out wide.

Nikorima added a penalty goal in the 70th minute. The Warriors closed out the game to win 20-14 in a very good game of football from both sides.

Cowboys hold off 12-man Bulldogs

The North Queensland Cowboys have posted back-to-back wins for the first time in 11 months after holding off the Canterbury-Bankstown Bulldogs 30-18 at Queensland Country Bank Stadium.

Establishing a match-winning lead with a strong start to the second half, the Cowboys proved too strong for a Bulldogs side reduced to 12 men after Jack Hetherington was sent from the field for a high tackle.

In a first half littered with errors from both sides, the Cowboys opened the scoring through Kyle Feldt (6th minute) who leapt above his opposite winger to touch down in the corner.

Responding a few minutes later after a nicely-timed offload from Hetherington, front-rower Renouf Atoni (12th minute) made the most of his starting opportunity to power over underneath the posts.

With both teams squandering opportunities close to the line due to a lack of patience and execution, the score remained locked at 6-all at the change of ends.

Coming out of the sheds with a renewed sense of energy, Reece Robson (44th minute) darted out from dummy half to put the home side back in front.

Extending their lead following the introduction of Jake Granville early in the second half, the replacement hooker sent Ben Condon (52nd minute) over for his second try in as many weeks.

With 25 minutes remaining, Hetherington became the first player sent off this season after collecting Valentine Holmes around the throat on a kick-return.

Taking advantage of their opponent's 12-man defensive line, Holmes showed no ill effects of being collected high to send Granville (59th minute) over for the match-clinching try.

Reducing the deficit to 24-12 after Sione Katoa put in a beautiful grubber for Kyle Flanagan (63rd minute), a try to Tui Katoa (69th minute) a few sets later saw the Bulldogs come right back into the contest.

Coming close to tying the game up only for Nick Cotric to be ruled offside from a kick, the Bulldogs fight back amounted to little as Mitch Dunn (78th minute) used his footwork to ice the win for the home side.
